

RECOMMENDS PUBLIC
TELEPHONE MONOPOLYPOSTMASTER GENERAL BURL-SON SUBMITS REPORT FAVOR-ING FEDERAL CONTROL.

PLANS FOR OWNERSHIP

Three Suggestions Offered As Means of Acquiring Telephone and Tele-

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Jan. 31.—Postmaster General Burelson today submitted a report to the senate with the recommendations of the departmental committee appointed by him to investigate the practicability of government ownership of telephone and telegraph lines.

The report declared that "the only way to afford to the people the complete and modern postal facilities that the constitution makes it the duty of the government to provide" is by carrying out these suggestions:

1.—That congress declare a government monopoly over all telegraph, telephone and radio communication and such other means for the transmission of intelligence as may hereafter develop.

2.—That congress acquire by purchase at appraised value the commercial telephone network except the farmer lines.

3.—That congress authorize the postmaster general to issue in his discretion and under such regulations as he may prescribe, revocable licenses for the operation, by private individuals, associations, companies and corporations, of the telegraph service and such parts of the telephone service as may not be required by the government.

The recommendations were accompanied by statistical information collected after one of the most exhaustive investigations undertaken by the postoffice department.

United States Backward.

The report states that the United States is "alone of the leading nations which has left to private enterprise the ownership and operation of the telegraph and telephone facilities" and that practically all of the economists who have treated the subject are agreed that telegraph and telephone facilities should be controlled by the government.

He declared further that Theodore N. Vail, president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company, by his statement that the telephone business must be "under common control" and "sufficiently regulated to constitute practically one system, intercommunicating, interdependent, universal" has himself pointed out that the most efficient telephone service can be attained only under a condition of monopoly.

INQUIRY STARTS AS TO CAUSE OF WRECK
OF FATED VESSELSDepartment of Commerce Orders
Sweeping Investigation to Ascertain Blame for Collision.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Norfolk, Va., Jan. 31.—With the final tragic summary written showing that forty-one lives were lost and ninety-nine saved, as a result of yesterday's disaster at sea, interest here today centered in ascertaining the causes that led up to the accident. The versions of the officers of the steamer Nantucket which early yesterday crashed into and sank the liner Monroe of the Old Dominion Steamship Company and of survivors have been told. It now remains for the federal government to officially determine the cause and other facts connected with the collision.

The revised list of victims and rescued showed that of the forty-one persons whose lives were lost nineteen were passengers and twenty-two were members of the crew. Of the ninety-nine persons saved thirty-nine were passengers and sixty were members of the crew.

Preliminary Steps.
Preliminary steps for beginning the federal investigation were taken early today on instructions from the department of commerce at Washington.

Assistant Secretary Sweet of the department of commerce yesterday ordered a sweeping inquiry into the causes and circumstances that led to the catastrophe. The inquiry will be directed along three distinct lines as follows:

Three Investigations.
Whether the masters of both vessels used every possible precaution to prevent the tragedy including a low speed headway and continual use of fog horns;

Whether the terrible death rate among the passengers of the Monroe was due in any way to a lack of discipline among the wrecked ship's crew;

Whether the two vessels were in their proper positions prior to the collision.

Little Confusion.

The question of a possible panic on the part of the crew is one to which the federal authorities will direct their attention. Survivors, however, declare that little if any confusion followed the collision. All of them praised the crew for their splendid behavior. H. B. Walker of New York, president and general manager of the Old Dominion Steamship Company, arrived here today from Washington prepared to take up the investigation.

Nantucket Docked.
Some of the survivors, worn out by exposure and hardships, spent restless nights or lay on hospital cots, while others were on their way to their homes today. Some of them were recounting their horrible experiences of yesterday and gave graphic descriptions of the collision and the events that followed. The Nantucket, which lay in her berth at the dock in a badly battered condition, was a solemn reminder of yesterday's sea-tragedy. She was viewed by hundreds of the curious.

An officially revised death list shows today that forty-one perished when the Old Dominion liner Monroe went down in fifteen fathoms of water off the Virginia coast.

Of those who perished nineteen were passengers and twenty-two were members of the crew. The bodies of one hundred and thirty-nine persons.

Wireless reports from a wrecking steamer on the scene of the disaster said no bodies have been recovered. Investigation by the United States steamboat inspectors. They will not make public their findings before Wednesday.

CRIPPLED STEAMER
ARRIVES IN HARBORTransfer All Passengers From Liner
in Heavy Seas to American Bound Ship.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Glasgow, Scotland, Jan. 31.—The Scandinavian-American liner "United States" crept into the Clyde today having been forced to turn back on her voyage from Copenhagen to New York by the bursting of a cylinder on Thursday when two hundred miles from the Scottish coast.

The 234 passengers on board were transferred off Greenock to the Anchor liner Cameronia under dangerous conditions owing to the high wind and heavy sea in the Firth of Clyde. They descended to the waiting tenders on storm ladders rigged to the vessel. Many of them were so nervous that they were carried down by the Danish seamen. The Cameronia left later in the day for New York.

SENATE IN UPROAR
WHEN LANE ATTACKS
COMMISSION ACTIONOregon Senator Starts Commotion on Steel Corporation Rebate Question.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Washington, Jan. 31.—Senator Lane of Oregon was removed from the floor of the senate today in a parliamentary gesture by Vice President Marshall during his speech on the interstate commerce commission's action on his resolution to investigate whether the United States steel corporation has received illegal rebates from railroads. The vice president ruled that Mr. Lane's remarks were a reflection on the committee.

Senator Newlands, chairman of the commission, and Senators Hoke, Smith and Lodge were on their feet at once, demanding apologies.

Upon motion of Senator James the Oregon senator was allowed to proceed and he withdrew his charges that the report had been "doctored" upon demand by Senator Newlands.

Attacks J. P. Morgan.
Just before his attack upon the commission, Senator Lane had defended David LaMar as a person whose "willing" was not to be compared with J. P. Morgan and company's manipulation of New Haven affairs.

"Yet Mr. Morgan said his dearest hope," continued Senator Lane, "was for his son to go on preaching the vamping away of sin by the blood of the redeemer. Then he pulled out of pocket a red bandana and skipped out for glory."

"I don't like to have the senate dragged around as a tool of the black-magic," said Senator Root, without rising or addressing the chair, but speaking to Senator Cummins.

Bristow Mixes In.
Senator Bristow sprang to his feet; "The New York Times," he said, "is something," he said, "I don't know whether he meant it to go into the records."

Senator Bristow then repeated Senator Root's words, "Some persons seem mighty tender when it comes to discussing the steel trust," added Senator Bristow, "a trust whose stock has gone up 10% and E. B. Smith has 100,000 shares."

Senator Root, rising to question of personal privileges, expressed his regret that the senator from Kansas had seen fit to have made a matter of public record remarks which had been made to Senator Cummins.

Senator Stone, interrupting at that point, declared:

The senator from Kansas is in the habit of doing these things. Personally I am tired of it."

At that juncture Senator Williams, declaring that the senators appeared in "bad humor," demanded the regular order.

FOREIGN SHIPMENTS
LOWER BUTTER COSTReduction in Tariff Results in Heavy Importation From Other Countries.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New York, Jan. 31.—An influx of foreign butter from all parts of the world due to the reduction of the tariff from five to 2½ cents a pound has caused a decline in the New York market price of ten cents a pound since the first of the year.

Butter has been coming in this city from as far off as Australia by way of San Francisco. 300,000 pounds from that country has been laid down here within the last two or three weeks. Butter has also been shipped from Argentina, Denmark and Siberia.

The shipments, butter dealers admitted today, have created marked uneasiness in the wholesale market with the result that there has been an unloading of various stocks. Today the best grade butter was selling at 26½ to 27 cents a pound wholesale.

SALOONKEEPER MAY TAKE

AFTER ONE IS REVOKED

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 31.—Where a saloonkeeper has had his license revoked, on the board which revoked it is prohibited from issuing him another within a year of revocation; the licensing authorities of other towns, village or cities are not thereby forbidden from issuing a license to the person whose permit has been revoked. This opinion was given by Attorney General Owen to District Attorney Charles E. Briere of Wood county.

CITY IN MOURNING
WHEN BODY ARRIVESBody of Senator Cullum Will Be Laid at Rest Sunday Within Shadow of Lincoln's Grave.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 31.—Snow lay deep in the streets through which the cortege bearing the body of former Senator Shelby M. Cullum made its way to the capitol today where the body will lie in state until tomorrow when the funeral will be held and interment take place.

A guard of honor consisting of thirty-six members of the Illinois N. G. plowed its way behind the hearse and on either side of it. At the capitol the coffin was borne along a pathway flanked high with snow and placed in the center of the rotunda.

In the corridors were American flags while the circular balcony railing of the dome above were draped in black. Flowers in profusion softened the gloom of the scene.

There were no services. Militia men stood silent at the four corners of the coffin while others directed the crowd which poured in at the east entrance and dispersed north and south through other wings.

There were no rail bearers, all active and all of this city. Mr. Cullum's circle of acquaintance was so great that it was decided to have no honorary list, which to include all of his intimates would have been too long.

Every part of the state will be represented at the funeral tomorrow and it is expected that the remnants of the pioneers who recall the Lincoln-Douglas debates at many of which young Cullum was present, will be represented.

The funeral sermon will be preached by the Rev. Donald MacLeod of Springfield, was the call to pastor at Washington. Eulogistic remarks will be made by Gov. Dunne and by Senator Lawrence Y. Sherman. Interment will be made at Oak Ridge cemetery, within the shadow of the monument marking the grave of Lincoln.

FIFTEEN HURT WHEN
RAIL DITCHES TRAINPassenger Train Bound for St. Louis
Derailed at Joliet—Injured Relieved at Farm-Houses.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 31.—Fifteen persons were injured, some of them so seriously they may die, when Chicago and Alton passenger train No. 7, bound from Chicago to St. Louis, was wrecked between here and Lockport early this morning, supposedly by a broken rail.

Nine cars left the track and three were overturned, one of them badly shattered. A partial list of the injured follows:

Miss Pearl Holmes, St. Louis; internal injuries, may die; J. G. McGee, Arkansas; internal injuries, may die; E. B. Smith, Chicago; head and neck injured; Fred Wehmiller, St. Louis; leg broken and back sprained; L. Baar, Malta, Mont.; ribs fractured. Relief trains were sent to the scene of the wreck, and the injured were brought to this city. Most of those injured were in the sleeping cars and were forced to leave in their night clothes and seek shelter in nearby farm houses.

The special train bearing the injured left for St. Louis 6:30 A. M. It is not believed that any of them will die and the condition of none of them was serious enough, in the opinion of physicians, to cause their being left in hospitals here.

The lives of the passengers in the overturned sleeper were saved by the fact that it was a steel car.

FOR MUNICIPAL SALOON
WITH FINANCIAL PROFIT
IN SOUTH DAKOTA TOWN

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Sisseton, S. D., Jan. 31.—The municipal saloon here, by a vote of this city when the councilmen decided the city might as well get all the profits as well as the taxes, has proved an unqualified success according to figures here today. The enterprise is operated strictly on the basis of the ordinances and the one bartender receives his regularly weekly pay from the municipal treasury. The plan has turned out to be such a financial plan, that other towns nearby are contemplating adopting it. DeSmet, S. D. will probably put the proposition up to the voters at the annual spring election.

All Things
Come to Him
Who WorksJust think of that phrase a moment, Mr. Dealer.

Then you might supplement it with this thought—that all things come more easily to the man who works intelligently.

That means that when the manufacturers of a nationally distributed product comes into the newspapers of your town to make a market for your goods it is time for you to help.

That is INTELLIGENT WORK.

It is easier to sell goods with which the public is made acquainted through the newspaper. The advertiser has a natural curiosity to see them.

Move with the tide, not against it. The going is easier. Show the goods. Use the newspapers and by all means use your counters and windows to advantage.

Merchandise along the line of demand. The sales will take care of themselves and the manufacturer is going to have a warm spot in his heart for you. He is going to keep your town and your store in mind the next time he embarks on an educational campaign.

The Bureau of Advertising, American Newspaper Publishers Association, World Building, New York is eager to be of assistance to manufacturers who have national advertising problems to solve.

INDICT RAILROADS AND SWIFT COMPANY
ON REBATE CHARGESNorthwestern, Pennsylvania and Ann Arbor Systems Face Charges of Federal Grand Jury.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Indictments charging rebating on the part of the Chicago and Northwestern railroad, the Pennsylvania system, the Ann Arbor railroad of Michigan, and Swift and company, meat packers, were returned today by the federal grand jury which has been hearing evidence for several weeks from special agents of the interstate commerce commission.

Swift and company are charged with obtaining alleged rebates from the Ann Arbor road by getting carload rates on less than car shipment. The Pennsylvania lines east of Pittsburgh are charged with rebating to the W. H. Merritt Grain company of Chicago.

Following switching rebates to which the company was entitled. The Chicago and Northwestern road is accused of grain rebates to David Rutter and company, coal dealers, on shipments of coal from Little, Ind., to the Pennsylvania lines by means of an improper combination of rates.

Swift and company face a possible fine of $1,200,000. The bill charges sixty alleged violations of the interstate commerce laws. The Pittsburg, Chicago and St. Louis railroad, known as the P. C. & S. L., and the Pennsylvania company are named in one joint indictment and a separate indictment in addition is returned against the Pennsylvania line.

REVISE CATALOGUE
ON INDIAN MOUNDSWisconsin Archeological Society Prepares New Catalogue of Prehistoric Works in State.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 31.—At the request of the American Bureau of ethnology the Wisconsin Archeological society has prepared a revised catalogue on the Indian antiquities of the state. This report will be printed in the new "Catalogue of Prehistoric Works" to be issued sometime during the year by the bureau. The Wisconsin section of this catalogue, which is being published for the benefit of the students of American Archeology, will include 3,000 separate items based on research conducted in this state within the past fifteen years.

While the work of locating and obtaining surveys and descriptions of Wisconsin's prehistoric remains has been continuing for years, this great progress has been made in the past twelve months. Field parties of from two to four men were outfitted and dispatched to unexplored sections for systematic research work. Such parties have been in the field for months in the northwestern counties, chiefly in Marinette, Oconto, Door and Shawano counties.

Records assembled during 1912 and 1913 include 152 groups of mounds, the so-called "mound groups," 209 aboriginal village sites, 80 cemeteries, eighteen patches of corn hills and 17 plots for garden beds, 12 groups of provision patches and a large number of implement hoards, kitchen middens, refuse pits, and other stone works sources of flint, pipestone and red daggings and a score of shrines. Of three newly discovered pipestone quarries one is in each Barron, Rusk and Sawyer counties. The discovery of good pipestone and of a quarry for the most part in Barron, Rusk, Marathon, Oconto, Chippewa and Vilas counties.

HEAVY SEAS DRIVE
YACHT ONTO REEFSWrecking Tug Unable to Aid Sailors
Who Stranded Vanderbilt
Yacht.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

New Orleans, Jan. 31.—The wireless was silent here during the early hours of today regarding the condition of Frederick W. Vanderbilt's yacht "Warrior" which went aground off the Colombian coast Monday.

Information was received here last night before the crew of forty men who refused to leave the yacht when Mr. Vanderbilt and his party were taken off by the United Fruit Steamship "Albatross" to the mainland.

The Albatross returned to the scene of the grounding yesterday at the solicitation of Mr. Vanderbilt who, with the remainder of his party, arrived at Colon today.

The wrecking tug from Jamaica also was reported standing by the yacht. Wireless reports last night said the "Warrior" further on the reef and the Albatross was to throw a line aboard the stranded vessel had failed.

CITIES CRIPPLED BY SEVERE SNOW STORM
OVER LAKE REGIONSRail Traffic and Telephone Service
Hampered by Storms Heading Westward From Lake Regions.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Chicago, Jan. 31.—A snow storm over Illinois, Indiana and Ohio today caused much delay to railroad traffic and telegraph and telephone service was badly hampered.

In this city all street railways brought out snow sweepers early but much difficulty was expected in keeping lines open in the outlying districts. In the lake region of Indiana and Ohio the snow turned to sleet and many more wires were prostrated.

Twelve Inches Deep.
Early today Chicago was buried beneath a twelve-inch mantle of snow when business attempted to start and the snow was still falling unabated. Although the official figures have the fall for the night as one foot, drifts were six feet deep and all local transportation was crippled as were the telegraph and telephone service.

The weather bureau predicted that the snowfall would continue throughout today and probably tonight, but without extreme cold. The temperature remained above freezing and there has been less suffering than might have been expected from the first real snow of the winter. It has furnished temporary work for an army of unemployed men, waiting for the opening of the ice harvest, delayed by the mild weather.

The body of a well-dressed man, supposedly attacked by heart disease, was found in a down town drift today.

In Michigan.
Detroit, Jan. 31.—The most severe lower Michigan snow storm of the winter prevailed over most of that section of the state today. Several places trains were stuck on highways badly drifted and telegraph and telephone wires crippled. Near Saginaw a Pere Marquette passenger train ran into the rear end of a freight train which is said to have been stalled in a snow drift. Three members of the freight train's crew were injured and traffic was delayed for several hours.

Forty Mile Gale.
Toledo, Jan. 31.—A forty mile gale out of the northwest accompanied by blinding sleet that lasted nearly all Friday night and this morning turned into snow, put wire service between Toledo and Cleveland and south of here, impeded the schedule of trains east and west.

Not Guilty.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Oshkosh, Jan. 31.—Arthur B. Case, a Park street resident, has been arrested on a charge of arson. The complainant is Deputy State Fire Marshal Finnegan of Green Bay. Case charged with maliciously setting fire to two lumber piles in the Diamond Match company's plant.

The fire started early in the morning and it is claimed he was seen in the vicinity a short time before the alarm came in. The fire did not get a good start owing to the lumber being piled closely together, but there were chances for a serious conflagration.

Case appeared in court and pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,000 bond. He was unable to furnish the bond and was sent to jail to await his hearing.

Woman.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Bartlesville, Okla., Jan. 31.—The jury in the trial of Mrs. Laura M. Reuter today found her not guilty of complicity in the murder of her husband, Charles T. Reuter.

This was Mrs. Reuter's second trial, the first one last autumn having resulted in a conviction carrying a sentence of life imprisonment. Mrs. Reuter sat unmoved while the verdict was returned. She had been through a trial, which lasted more than a week, and had heard the evidence and arguments while lying on a cot in the courtroom. Her case was given to the jury late yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Reuter, who formerly was a society woman in Tulsa, was charged with conspiracy by Guy D. Mackenzie, a wealthy Tulsa contractor, Grover Ballou, Mackenzie's chauffeur, and Joseph Baker, head of the Tulsa underworld, with plotting to murder Reuter. Reuter was shot and killed in his home in Tulsa on the night of May 5, 1912.

A week later Mackenzie, Ballou and Baker and Mrs. Reuter were arrested and charged with plotting to murder Reuter. Reuter was shot and killed in his home in Tulsa on the night of May 5, 1912.

KEEPS THE BUTTER COOL
An Earthenware Cover Filled With Water Takes Place of Ice.

In tropical regions where ice is not accessible, the natives have a way of keeping food and water at a desirable temperature by the use of an earthenware jar in which some water has been placed. The action of the water in finding its way through the perforations of the jar and being evaporated on the outside has the effect of lowering the temperature to a very desirable degree. This idea has been utilized by a French inventor in the manufacture of a butter cover to be utilized on expeditions and in localities where it is not convenient to get ice. This cover is hollow, not only to accommodate the butter or other article which it may be desired to put inside, but between the walls there is a space into which it is designed to place a quantity of water. The evaporation of the water on the outside surface cannot take place without absorption of heat and this is drawn from the article which happens to be under the earthenware cover. The water is supplied through an opening in the handle.

POLITICS ARE ALL SIXES AND SEVENS

EVERYTHING IS MIXED UP AND ALL ARE UNCERTAIN OVER OUTCOME.

BOTH PARTIES AT SEA

Cannot Make Any Definite Decisions.—Leaders Squabble Among Themselves.—That Awful Tax Levy.

N. B. This is one of a series of articles written exclusively for the Gazette on Wisconsin politics.

(By Bob Acres.)
When I was a small boy I once visited by grandfather who kept an old-fashioned country store in a small old-fashioned village "way down east." People bought candles in those days and they were sold in two sizes, one was seven to a pound, the other, fatter, chunkier sort were six to a pound. When a housewife wanted the slim kind she said she wanted the sevens, and when she wanted the other variety she said she wanted the sixes. I discovered the candle boxes and amused myself by mixing them all up and the next time my grandfather went to sell some sixes he found the sixes and sevens all mixed up. I do not just remember what happened then, but I do know that he was pretty mad. Well, the present complication of Wisconsin politics reminds me strongly of my grandfather's candle supply after I got through with it. Everything is at sixes and sevens. Some small boy, the reformer of this time, has mixed everything up and grandfather, taxpayer, is pretty mad. First it is the taxes, next it is, what will the "powers that be say," and so it goes on. No one knows what sort of a political epidemic is going to break loose next. Really I think it would be a precious good thing if some grandfather would take those bad boys, give them a good taste of strap oil, pass them out a dose of old-fashioned whippersnappers to clear their systems of the reform poison and put them to bed. It would help things wonderfully and I am sure in time they would see the error of their ways and grow up to be real nice, respectable citizens after all.

Years ago, before the primary system was in vogue, the good old-fashioned caucuses were held. I regret that they are things of the past. We used to have our ward caucus, we used to have our city caucus, we used to have our county convention, we used to have our district convention and incidentally every every voter had a whole lot to say about it all. We met and discussed topics of vital interest, fought it all out at the convention, chose a candidate and then went out and helped elect the choice of the majority. It was majority rule, anyway, that was the main thing of course, there were crooked primaries now, but taking it all in all, we had lots more fun and got better results, I think.

Well, what I started in to say is this. Last week three hundred farmers out in Lafayette county met at the town hall in Mineral Point and discussed this high tax question. I tell you it was just like a gathering of minute men in the old colonial days. These men who felt they were oppressed are ready for a second Boston Tea Party, or a Bunker Hill, if need be, to get their rights. Down at Dodgeville I found the same thing, and then went out and helped elect the choice of the majority. It was majority rule, anyway, that was the main thing of course, there were crooked primaries now, but taking it all in all, we had lots more fun and got better results, I think.

The democratic leaders have about given up hope of heading off Iky Karel in his governorship race. Now they are looking for the rest of the ticket. They also have their weighty eyes peeled for the senatorship job and the good Lord help Aylward if he tries to stop the anti-Davies-Aylward crowd when they once get started. It is going to be a war to the knife now and that old talk of signing a peace treaty under the spreading branches of a state convention is all poppycock. There are Karel men who remember a similar treaty of peace two years ago and how quickly it was violated and this time they are going to fight in the open all the way through.

Weisse seems to have the call for the senatorship job. The Milwaukee contingent are boosting his party pretty strong. Perhaps they are doing it to antagonize the Aylward-Davies crowd, but anyway, it is "Weisse that." Weisse that everywhere. Meaning Dan Grady, up Portage way, is saying nothing, but I would not be surprised if he came out as a candidate himself and if he does, look out Mr. Weisse. Grady is a strong man and he is a young man, and he is an ambitious young man. There you have it. However, Aylward is not without hopes himself, as I find out from Madison really. They really expect him to run and look for Davies to sit back and hold down his job in Washington, giving partner John a wash this time so as to really hold the whole bag when he falls. It may be a wise move after all, for Davies is sure of his job for seven years more anyway, and that may be three years longer than the democrats are in power and besides he can hold that down and be the democratic boss in Wisconsin as well.

Now to cross over the fence and discuss our republican friends. I find that the great trouble is the tax levy. The leaders do not know what to do with it. They would like to ignore it. Of course they would, but the people won't let them. They are going to have conferences of the "real" leaders shortly and together the reform state central committee some time next month, and talk it all over. At the same time they are going to unite on some one candidate for governor.

Shades of the Jeremiah Rusk! Think of the bunch that make up that state central committee coming together under the guise of republicans and deciding who the free thinking voters of the state shall vote for at the primaries for governor. We all know that what they do decide will have all been decided for them down in Washington. That national committee, Al Rogers, will hand out the printed slips that were drawn up in La Follette's committee room in the basement of the capitol building, to this man or that and they will jump up at just the proper moment, be recognized by the chairman, move such and such an action be taken and it will be passed. I tell you it is a farce.

When we got rid of the old caucus system and installed this far famed Wisconsin ideal of a primary law, we exchanged King Log for King Stork or did we? I do not know what he was talking about. Well, anyway, I am going to make a guess. Hatton will be the choice for governor. Crownhart will withdraw his name, Owen will run for the attorney generalship, our friend Roethe, who dared to announce his candidacy and platform without due consultation with the bosses will be cast into outer darkness and Speaker Hull will be given little less shift.

As for the senatorship, of course McGovern will be a candidate. That is evident and conceded by all. Just who will be the man to oppose him is bothering the republicans. They would like to have La Follette choose his candidate and then flock to him like sheep following the bell wether, but La Follette is playing a wiser and deeper game. As I explained in one of my former letters, he would not be adverse to seeing a democrat in the senate. He figures out that Wilson will have run the democratic race out by the end of his term; he knows that they only won out at the last general election because Roosevelt had split the republican party in two and he looks for a reorganization of the O. P. that will put them back in Washington again.

Now figure out what it would mean. If La Follette is the only senator from Wisconsin with the republican uniform, when he goes to the senate he gets back into power, if he has his state central committee nicely in the hollow of his hand, if he has his hand out all the patronage and he runs two years from now for his own seat, and with a combination of accidents, a weak democratic candidate could be put in the field that would not attract La Follette's "fair-minded friends." I tell you it is a waiting game. Of course McGovern may fool them all, but it does not look like it now. McGovern has got to answer for this high tax proposition and there is the whole trouble in a nut shell. Taxes, taxes, taxes. It looks to me as though it was going to be a good time for a few strong men in the various parts of the state to get together and endorse a platform of reform for the reformers and then make every candidate then endorse for office sign it. I say it looks like a good opportunity and perhaps this may be my last. Funny things happen in politics you know?

Heart to Heart Talks

By CHARLES N. LORIE

THE SOMETHING THAT SINGS.

'Tis not in the high stars alone,
Nor in the cup of budding flowers,
Nor in the redbreast's mellow tone,
Nor in the bird's smiles in showers,
But in the mud and mire of things,
There always, always, something sings.

Does the "something" sing to you?
Do you see the beauty that lies in the lowly things?

Any one can see the glory of the sunset and the charm of the rainbow. It takes no trained eye to perceive the artistic worth and to feel the appeal of a great statue or a beautiful painting. Such things are of universally acknowledged merit.

We can feel and enjoy them, but we must not vaunt ourselves upon the appreciation that is a common heritage. But if your heart thrills to the call of a simple kindly deed unnoticed by the world at large, you are a lover of mankind. If you understand the worth and the heroism of a life spent in self denial and sacrifice for the sake of others, you are among the elect for whom "always, always, something sings."

Train your ear to hear the songs. Educate your eye to notice such matters. Bring the mind and the heart up to an appreciation of them. It will be a course in the widespread university of humanity, whose halls of learning are the world, whose teaching staff are all one's fellow beings, whose curriculum is the following of the ways of humanity with interested, benevolent eyes.

"Nothing useless is or low; each thing in its place is best," said the poet. From every one, saint or sinner, bond or free, something of good may be learned. It may be positive good or it may be negative good. The former teaches what to seek; the latter shows us what to avoid.

The Roman poet-dramatist Terence, who rose from slavery to the high place of favorite of the Roman populace, voiced the sentiment thus:

"I am a man, and I have an interest in everything that concerns humanity." It is recorded that when these words were spoken from the stage the audience rose in tumultuous applause.

They are as true now as they were when they were written, more than 2,000 years ago.

KENNETH PARKER AT A BIG CELEBRATION HELD AT STUTTGART

Sends His Father, George S. Parker, Picture of Military Anniversary.

Kenneth Parker, son of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Parker, who is spending the year in study at Stuttgart, Germany, has sent his father an interesting picture of the recent military celebration at that city in which the Emperor of Germany and King William of Wurtemberg took part, showing these two noted men marching along the line of march. The emperor is to the left of the picture and King William of Wurtemberg at the right. It was the hundredth anniversary of the famous battle of the Marston, the famous Dragoon cavalry, the royal bodyguard of the Queen of Wurtemberg, John Gollner, who was formerly with the Parker Pen Company of this city and who has many friends here, is living in Stuttgart and with Kenneth Parker were in the crowd which witnessed the line of march, near the building shown in the picture. It was quite a memorable event and attended by thousands of persons of note from all parts of the German empire, Wurtemberg being one of the allied states of the great federation of which Emperor William is ruler and has its own constitutional sovereign, King William II.

EMPEROR WILLIAM AT STUTTGART.

Sweet Potatoes Came First.
When Falstaff, in "The Merry Wives of Windsor," exclaims, "Let the sky rain potatoes!" he does not refer to our homely vegetable, but to sweet potatoes (patates), a very different sort of thing, but common in England before Sir Walter Raleigh introduced the "virginian potatoes" into County Cork, Ireland, about 1584.

"A Wise Man Changes His Mind"

The Science of Chiropractic clearly Shows That it is the Little Bones in the Back Out of Place That Cause Sickness and Disease.

DON'T BE SICK LONGER! MY CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTMENTS ARE A SURE AND CERTAIN METHOD OF OVERCOMING DISEASE.

It takes a wise man to change his mind. If you are sick and in pain, but just a little bit skeptical about the results obtained through my Chiropractic Adjustments it will pay you to change your mind and investigate.

My Chiropractic Adjustments go right at the cause of disease and remove that cause. When one of the little bones of the spinal column get out of line and press on the sensitive nerves that go to feed the various parts of the body and disease results. My adjustments replace these subluxated vertebrae, the nerve force is allowed an uninterrupted flow and health returns. Simple isn't it? Even though simple the results are certain.

STOMACH TROUBLE
This man had stomach trouble. I found the dislocated vertebrae that was causing all the trouble, adjusted it back in place and the man enjoys perfect health.

CONSTIPATION
This man was troubled with constipation and the case was quite severe. A few of my adjustments and he rapidly regained his normal good health and is well and happy today.

If you have some ailment come to me at once. Let me explain what can be accomplished. Don't suffer another day.

Sport Snap Shots

Abis Attell is doing a vodelv stunt. Ex-champs of the ring always go good in a vodelv act, especially if they wear a clawhammer and white gloves. A prize fighter or ex-fighter in white gloves is always worth the admission fee. Jimmy Britt does a neat vodelv turn appearing in evening gown with the calico mitts and doing a well-written monologue which he has carefully memorized. Jimmy is there every time with the rising inflection and the expressive waves of the hand. Every one has seen Jim Corbett at one time or another, but Corbett could have put over a thespian thing without a ray of light. Jim is just a natural-born entertainer. Very few of the baseball or fighting heroes who appear before the footlights give you as much for your money as Corbett. He has a movie film that he carries with him, which shows graphically his early boyhood struggles and a number of his many fights. He explains that he fought something like 385 of them and lost five of them. The bunch-fie is also reciting a little poem composed for the occasion entitled, "When you are and when you're not."

Altho the past season was not as brilliant as one for Joe Wood as previous one, he managed to finish the season with a record. He beat all other American league pitchers in the matter of strike-out feats, nailing out even the well known Walter Johnson, who won the Chalmers car. In 54 games in the American league last season nine or more men were struck out by Joe Wood. Wood was responsible for six games against five of Walter Johnson's. The record for strike-outs in a nine-inning game went to Jim Scott of the white Sox, who made 16 of the Browns fan the house on June 22. Later in the season he fanned 14 of the same Browns. Engel, Hughes and Johnson of Washington all got together and fanned 20 Browns in 15 innings on July 25. The Browns managed to help more pitchers in this respect than any others. O'Brien of Boston, Plank of the Athletics, Groom of Washington and Mitchell of the Naps all made good performance at striking out the opposition, each having moved down as many as twelve in a game.

Branch Rickey, manager of the St. Louis Browns, says that he might have been a pitcher of repute in the big show today had he not been so assiduous in practicing the spitball. It was in the effort to perfect the moistened delivery that Rickey, all but ruined his arm and was obliged to give up his hopes of becoming a star performer in the major leagues. Many a big league star has lost his whip in the same manner. It is all too true that intemperant indulgence in the spitball delivery has sent some big boys back to the minor leagues. "I was a youngster," says Rickey, "I practiced the spitball till I began to think I had Ed Walsh looking like a drunk buster. I found there were times when I could make the ball jump all over the place. But the next day I was apt to find that I could throw nothing at all. I learned the lesson too late and that's why I try and discourage a young player from throwing the spitball. In the end it does much more injury than it does good. It can bring a pitcher. No matter how well able he thinks he is to handle it."

Kid Williams, the Baltimore bantam, admits that the challenges to Kibbabe that were reported to have been sent out by his manager some while ago were all bunk. "I merely thought that to try and fool Johnny Coulton," says Williams, "I thought that Coulton would be apt to think that I couldn't make the bantam limit and the trick worked partly. But if I ever thought that Johnny Kibbabe would have trouble in making the feather limit I know it correctly now. It's as easy for him as it is for me to weight in as a bantam. And I'm more than willing to remain a bantam yet a while."

FOOTBALL TRAINING PREPARES STUDENTS FOR POLITICAL LIFE

Knight of the Gridiron Successful in Political Game—Penn. Varsity Starts Boxing League.

New York, Jan. 31.—That college football with its rigorous training, necessity for self control and ability to surmount repeated setbacks on the part of its players, is particularly fitting for a student's political career later in life would appear to be indicated by the number of famous players who have achieved positions of prominence in both state and nation. There is seldom an election of importance in which some football player is not elevated to public life by the voters of one or another political party. These former knights of the gridiron are selected or appointed to all manner of political positions and almost without exception discharge the duties of their office in an extremely satisfactory manner.

The recent election of Blair Lee as United States Senator from Maryland recalls to mind the long list of former players who have won public recognition of similar nature. Lee, who was a famous "forward" at Princeton in the late seventies, playing the position of "next-to-the-end" now known as tackle, followed the footsteps of many other Princeton, Harvard and Yale players.

Many Yale Men. Robert Bacon, late ambassador to France, was an old Harvard captain and half-back. S. Elihu Root, United States Interstate Commerce Commission is an old Princeton forward. Lee McClung, late treasurer of the United States, a former captain and half-back at Yale; William H. Lewis, recently Assistant Attorney General of the United States, an old Harvard center; S. H. Thompson, the present First Assistant Attorney General of the United States, and William V. Roper, the present surveyor of the Port of Philadelphia, both Princeton ends; ex-Congressman Lucius N. Littauer, a linesman for the Crinson; Gifford N. Pinchot, late Chief Forester, once a varsity man at Yale, and his successor, the present incumbent at Washington, Chief Forester Harmon S. Graves, a former back for the Blue Devils at Harvard; Governor George R. Carter of Hawaii, once a guard at Yale; Everett J. Lake, the great Harvard half-back; Lieutenant Governor of Connecticut, and the famous W. H. Corbin, affectionately known as "Pa," the present Commissioner of Taxes for Connecticut, once a center for Yale. John C. Bull, the great Pennsylvania half-back, the Chief Justice of New Jersey is William S. Gummere, another old Princeton captain. In Pennsylvania's 20th Judicial District is another Princeton player, Judge J. M. Woods. George W. Woodruff, an-

Court, was once a celebrated guard at Yale, and still more famous as a coach at Pennsylvania. Inventor of the quarter-back kick, guards-back and a host of other football maneuvers. A recent reform mayor of Harrisburg was Vance McCormick, the old Yale quarter-back. A late assistant Police Commissioner in New York was Bert Hanson, the old Yale guard, and there is "Big Bill" Edwards, an old Princeton captain. Late New York Street Cleaning Commissioner, now in charge of a similar department at Newark, N. J., Charles D. Daly, the Army's successful coach last fall, has recently left the office of Fire Commissioner of Boston to rejoin the army and the list might be continued indefinitely.

The University of Pennsylvania boxing team elected officers last week to formulate plans and take action toward the formation of an inter-collegiate boxing league. The projected organization is the result of five years' effort by Pennsylvania boxing enthusiasts to interest other universities in the establishment of such a league. One obstacle is the popular belief that boxing is dangerous and an incentive to gambling. It is believed, however, that the present effort will succeed, and that boxing will be taken up as an intercollegiate sport.

Have Street Rules. If a league is formed the Amateur Athletic Association novice rules will be amended to serve the league code. The projected regulations call for a regulation costume and eight ounces gloves. Other rules will provide for three rounds in all competitive boxing, with a one minute interval between rounds; each competitor to be assisted by one second, who shall be an undergraduate in good standing; no coaching during the progress of a bout. No student under eighteen years of age will be allowed to compete.

WESTERN MILITIA TO CORRECT SPARTA ON NEW RIFLE RANGE

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 31.—United States Army and Wisconsin National Guard, a shooting competition from Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota and the Dakotas will compete at Sparta, Wis., on the new government rifle range sometime during the coming summer, according to an announcement here today following the receipt of word from Congressman Esch of La Crosse, who prevailed on the war department to remove the competitions now held at Camp Perry to Sparta. August and September are the months set for the annual shoot.

The Sparta range was completed four years ago and the shoots have been annual affairs ever since.

Eye-sight and Crime. Many criminals have suffered from eye strain or some other defect of vision which prevented the exercise of complete self-control. ## THREE LOCAL FIVES ARE GIVEN DEFEAT

Miller's Team Loses at Rockford by 56 Pins, Beloit Trims Maroons and Seconds Loss at Fort.

Bowling on strange alleys, the Miller's team gave the Lewis-Branch five an exciting contest at the Herbert Lewis alleys at Rockford last night. The Janesville five losing by fifty-six pins after taking two of the three games. The Herbert Lewis team is considered the best five in Rockford and are entered in the national tournament which is to be held at Buffalo, New York, in January.

In the first game of the Janesville five beat out the Rockford fives by seventeen pins, but lost ground in the second lap, when the Lewis five rolled eighty-five pins better than the Janesville five. The Janesville five made up the loss in the last round, rolling a 955 game, but lost the contest as the home team was only two points in the year at this period of the game. Every round of the Janesville five, with the exception of Osborn, struck out and Osborn finished with a spare. Abraham, of Janesville, won individual honors, with the high score of 217, made in the last session. Ruthoff, of the victors, rolled high average with 198, which is considerable of an average.

The Janesville fives' averages were: Neighbors, 182%; Abraham, 169%; Cook, 181%; Abraham, 178%; Osborn, 184%; Rockford—Lundgren, 178%; Welling, 182%; Carlson, 167; and Schmitt, 180%.

JANESVILLE HIGHS WIN CONTEST FROM STOUGHTON EASILY

Double Score on Swedes. In Rough Conflict at Kegonsa Town Last Evening, Score, 47 to 22.

For the first time in seven years the Stoughton, high school basketball quintet, were decisively defeated on their own floor last evening by the local coming champs of Wisconsin, the final score standing 47 to 22. At no time, with the exception of the first two minutes of play, did the Swedes show any class against the locals.

Starting out with a lead of six points, the Kegonsa men were determined to win, and bid fair toward accomplishing their desires, until, local team-work, which won for Janesville fame last year, at Appleton, was commenced. Then it was a matter of score. Stoughton boast of not having been beaten by any five on their own floor in seven years, but the defeat handed them last night was a defeat which the Swedes will never forget.

Hemming, captain of the locals, played the most brilliant game for either five. Before the contest, Stoughton argued that they had a center, which would give Hemming his hardest rub of the year. He must have done so, for the best Hemming could do during the conflict was to cage eleven beautiful baskets, with little or no exertion at all, and that wasn't all. Jerdee could not score off Hemming, whose guarding was a feature of the struggle.

Dalton comes next with seven baskets. He played at guard, and beat his man on the number made by three Parrish, securing four during the game. Dalton was all over the floor at once, and was like a flash at shooting.

Stewart, Atwood and Rau played star games. Atwood caged but one basket, through good guarding by Hansen. The mighty forward was off in form, and played just the opposite style of game that characterized his clever work at Freeport, two weeks ago.

Stickney entered the game in Dalton's place during the middle of the second half and engaged in clever tactics, which resulted in good guarding on his part.

Parrish began the scoring for Stoughton by caging a short shot. Eiken soon followed with another. Parrish scored again, bringing the total up to 6, while the locals had a 0 in their column. Hemming soon began to work, and his timely baskets

LOCAL CARDS READY FOR MADISON TEAM

Moose Roller Polo Team Has Big Schedule for Week—Hundred Expect to Make Trip to Rockford.

While the members of the Janesville basketball team are aware of the strength of the Wisconsin Reserves, whom they are to meet at the risk tonight, the local team is hoping for a victory with their strengthened line-up. If the players that are signed up for this contest live up to their reputation the Cardinals should make this matter interesting for the varsity students when the whistle blows. The combat should be one of the best exhibitions of modern basketball, the superior passing style of playing rather than individual dribbling that has been seen at the rink floor for some time.

The Moose roller polo team has scheduled three out of town games this week and are hoping to come back with a clean slate. On Thursday night the Moose will give an exhibition game at the Coliseum at Rockford for the purpose of raising funds for roller polo at the Rockford skaters. The Janesville five will be opposed by a picked team composed of star players from Racine and Kenosha.

It is expected that two special interurban cars will be chartered as over a hundred fans wish to enjoy the Janesville night at the Rockford rink. On Saturday night the Moose team journey to Racine to clash with Reichert's All Stars and on Sunday afternoon play at Kenosha. The team returns to Racine the same night to play against the All Stars. Reichert's aggregation is anxious to gain revenge for the two trimmings that the Moose have administered to them this season and both contests promise to be exciting.

"Nil Desperandum." We always may be what we might have been.

Read these! There is something of interest there for those who wish to take advantage of the savings there offered.

are what put the locals on their feet. Dalton followed with two beautiful shots. The half soon ended with the locals leading, the score standing 15 to 9.

Sullivan scored for Stoughton early in the second half. Stewart came next, only to be followed by Sullivan again. Hemming took a spurt and scored twice in rapid succession. The game ended after local spectacular floor work, on the part of Janesville, the final score counting 47 to 22.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

At the third annual dinner of the Bucktail Boy Scout troop at Bala, Pa., a gold watch was awarded to the boy who had written the best essay on the subject "Father and Son and What They Owe Each Other." The watch went to Alexander H. Holcombe, age fourteen.

This is the boy's essay: "Honor thy father and thy mother" and "Children obey your parents," are two laws from the Bible which sum up that which a boy owes his father. Obedience is the greatest duty of a boy to his father. If a boy obeys and respects his father he will surely make a good man, and when the time comes he will be able to meet the world fairly and squarely. A boy should obey his father as a soldier obeys his commander and never question his orders. He should also honor his father and be grateful for anything which is done for him.

A father should be grateful for the honor which his son gives him. He should give an interest to the boy's games, collections and many other things which his son enjoys. As a father has had more experience in the different lines of work and play, a boy should take his father's corrections and not make the same mistakes again. A father should set a good example for his son. He should never do or say that which he would not like his son to do or say.

If a boy does what his father asks and the father takes an interest in the boy's affairs, the world will see a great change. Always remember that: "Like father like son" is a saying so true. The world will judge largely of father by you."

This little essay from a fourteen year old boy, expresses, perhaps, better than the average boy could do it, the sentiment which every normal boy entertains toward his father.

The question of obedience dates back to early childhood. In fact about the first impression which memory retains is the arbitrary law of obedience, and some of these impressions are so lasting that they stay by us even down to the era of second childhood.

The old grandfather who thinks that his grandson is enjoying too much liberty, and likely to go to the bad because of over-indulgence, recalls the time spent in the woodshed doing penance for trifling offenses.

There comes a time in the life of every boy, however loyal he may be, when obedience becomes irksome, and if he don't demand it, he feels that he is entitled to know why he should obey.

This is the age when reason dawns, and the mind begins to ask questions. The age when the free and easy outdoor life is more attractive than the school-room, and when, if the boy is held in school, that some other means than compulsion must be employed.

The state made a mistake in placing the employment age limit for boys at sixteen, for experience demonstrates that the average boy of fourteen can not be compelled to go to school, and as a result, our larger cities are developing a class of loafers who are willing to work, if they were permitted to do so.

This restless age of indifference to school and parental authority is something for which the boy is not responsible, and while the mother may succeed in holding him steady, until his feet are planted on firmer ground, the influence of the father, if intelligently directed, is of vital importance.

The trouble with too many boys, is that they practically have no father. The man about the house, who is the bread-winner, often has but little time to devote to the family, and the average father entertains the notion that the training of the children belongs to the wife and mother.

This is a mistaken notion, for however competent the mother may be, the boy is standing close to the threshold of a man world, and when the father represents anything to him, he represents an ideal.

More than this, he longs for companionship, and no comrade comes quite as close to the boy as the father who is in love and sympathy with him.

The boys who emerge from the restless age as "sissy" boys, are the boys who have the reputation of being tied to their mothers' apron strings, and who never discovered that their fathers had any strings that they could tie to.

While the mother is the center of attraction in the home, as she should be, and while her memory lingers as a sacred benediction, down through the years, the father can make a place for himself in the hearts of the children, if he will.

If you have ever watched a wise employer of labor, you may have noticed that he never tells his men to do anything, but all his orders are given in the form of a request.

It makes all the difference in the world whether you say gruffly to a workman, "Do this!" or whether you say, in pleasant tone, "Will you do this?" The atmosphere of a shop usually tells the story.

What is true in the realm of industry is true in a closer sense in the home. The boy who has been brought up on a diet of "don'ts"—as too many boys have—and who was disappointed when a cuff did not follow the word of command, finally reaches an age where a reward must be given to insure obedience, and this a wise father is ever ready to give.

The Scout boy expressed a great truth when he said: "If a boy does what his father asks"—not what he commands—and the father takes an interest in the boy's affairs, the world will see a great change."

Someone said, not long ago, in writing about boys, that character was largely formed before the age of fourteen, and that the home was entirely responsible for the men of the next generation.

This is a grave responsibility, yet the statement is not overdrawn. The boy who is held steadily to his course by loving care and thoughtful consideration, until judgment develops, is not likely to go wrong, and the father has much to do with the steady process.

When the average boy arrives at the age where he can stand on his feet, and is ready to leave school from the grades, as most of them do, the best place for him to work out a career, is not always at home, for two or three reasons.

In the first place he naturally feels that he wants to adopt his father's calling so far as an occupation is concerned, and this is often suicidal. He may or may not be adapted to the work, and adaptability has much to do with destiny.

If he is a mechanical genius, give him mechanics, and if he is a born salesman, find a place for him in commercial life. The cause of many failures is in trying to fit a square peg to a round hole.

Another reason is that the boy needs the rough and tumble experience that can only be had away from home environments, to test his metal both morally and mentally. He needs to learn that seven o'clock in the morning don't mean seven-thirty, and he needs to work hard so that nine o'clock at night finds him in bed.

The time was when advancement in the railroad was governed by seniority, but this is of the past. Today the sons of railway magnates are sent from college into the operating department, sometimes under assumed names, and turned loose to work out their own salvation.

The story of one of these boys was told recently in one of the magazines. He was known as "Mike" and his technical knowledge, gained in school, was turned to such good advantage, that he soon became popular, and after two years' experience at all kinds of work, he was ready to assume responsibility.

One day three division superintendents appeared at the general office, all demanding that "Mike" be assigned to their division. The president touched a bell, when "Mike" appeared and was introduced as general superintendent of the entire system.

This little story may be overdrawn, yet the fact remains that the colleges are being scoured today for young men who possess the nerve to tackle just this kind of work, at the bottom of the ladder.

The world has room for this kind of boys in every department, and the home can furnish them, if the fathers take intelligent interest. The mother is ever ready to do her share. Give the boys a chance by helping them to help themselves.

FIRST STANZA.

A man once said unto his wife, unto his wife he said,
"I couldn't bring home gasoline today."

The butler said I could do was to bring three loaves of bread,
It pains me much those hateful words to say.

"You are a wretch," the lady cried, to go and spend your dough
For luxuries like bread. You go too far.

Why don't you buy necessities, for very well you know
We've no benzine to run our touring car."

CHORUS.

We'll starve, we'll pinch, we'll dodge our debts,
But one fact we will know,
All else we'll gladly sacrifice and suffer no regrets,
For our car has got to go.

SECOND STANZA.

The lady went and pawned her ring, the wedding ring, you know;
She sold the baby's highchair with a smile,
She pawned the parlor rug as well, the kitchen range also,
Accumulating quite a little pile.

She went to a nearby garage where gasoline was sold,
She laid her wealth down at the keeper's feet.
He filled her car with gasoline and then with joy untold,
She gaily honked and started down the street.

CHORUS.

We'll wear punk clothes the year around,
Our pleasure 'twill not mar,
We'll starve, but we are surely bound
To run our touring car.

Hickeyville Items.

Today's Edgerton News.

Edgerton, Jan. 31.—Thirty little friends helped Miss Dorothy Babcock celebrate her twelfth birthday last evening from five to eight at her home. The evening was pleasantly spent in playing games and music. At six o'clock a delicious four course luncheon was served, the decorations and favors were carried out in valentine effect. Dorothy was presented with a dainty looking cake, a remembrance of the happy occasion.

The Misses Mary, Alice, Nellie and Katherine Roherty of Janesville are spending the week end, with their grandmother, Mrs. M. Leary.

The Ladies' Society of the Norwegian church will be entertained by Mrs. E. M. Ladd and Mrs. John Maries on Thursday, February 5th.

Mark Nichols spent today here on business.

Playing with good team work the local boys defeated Broadhead in the Edgerton gymnasium last night by a score of 62 to 6, and was watched by about 200 spectators. At the first of the game Edgerton made baskets after basket and kept it up throughout the first half of the game. Broadhead, after Referee Holt put in four Edgerton subs, scored their one basket during the last ten minutes of play. This game was preceded by an interesting one played between the Boy Sports men and the Y. M. C. A., resulting in a score of seven to five in favor of the Sportsmen. With much enthusiasm Edgerton is looking forward to what

HEADACHY, COSTIVE, BILIOUS—"CASCARETS"

Sick Headache, Bad Breath, Sour Stomach, mean Liver and Bowels are clogged—Cheer up!

Get a 10-cent box. Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the congested waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months.

On Advertising A Store:

Advertising is a mighty force in these days—and a force for good because in the long run only a good store or a good commodity can endure the light of publicity; and, being good the attraction of a large and growing colony of users enables the owners to make the desired thing or commodity better and better. The world has never been so well served as today. Money has never before had such buying power in securing necessities, comforts and luxuries. ## CHARLES LUMM CASE DISMISSED BY COURT

Judge Maxfield Grants Motion of Non-Suit in Action Against Milton Junction Man.

Granting the motion of non-suit on the grounds of insufficient evidence to warrant the progress of the trial, the case against Charles Lumm of Milton Junction was dismissed by Judge Maxfield in municipal court this morning. Lumm's introduction of the state's testimony.

Lumm was arrested on the charge of selling liquor without a license and the complaint against him was subsequently changed to include the sale of liquor in dry territory. His place at the Junction was one of the three that were raided on Christmas eve by Sheriff C. S. Whipple, Turnkey W. R. Wood and Deputy Sheriff C. E. Dulin and Constable Baker. The other two parties pleaded guilty to the charges against them in Judge Maxfield's court and paid heavy fines.

When Whipple and Dulin were the only witnesses called in to testify. The sheriff related his trip to Milton Junction on the night in question and told of the operations at the Junction. He found no one there and effected an entrance through a window. After going through the house Mr. Whipple said that they found a bar bottle containing whiskey, another bottle of what he supposed was gin, a dozen or so whiskey glasses, some of them still wet, in a small room or pantry adjoining the kitchen. The whiskey bottle was on top of what was taken for an ice chest. Whipple testified that there were also a dozen or more empty bottles, jugs and cigar boxes in the room.

Upon cross-examination, Mr. Whipple stated that he nor any of the men with him did not go into the cellar as they noticed no door leading to a cellar and did not think of making an investigation there. Deputy Sheriff Dulin substantiated in the main the evidence of Mr. Whipple.

The bottle of whiskey and three glasses, the gin bottle which the defense contended contained denatured alcohol, and a government license for the sale of liquor at Chicago, Lake Koshkonong, were introduced as evidence. Judge Maxfield ruled that the possession of the government license was not a prima facie evidence of the sale of liquor. He granted the motion for non-suit, that the license was not properly an exhibit in the case as it could not apply to the sale of liquor at Milton Junction. Judge Maxfield granted the motion and dismissed the jury shortly after eleven o'clock.

The court room was crowded with spectators, many of them from Milton Junction, who were interested in the progress of the case. John L. Fisher and the firm of Jeffries, Mount, Oestreich and Avery, were attorneys for Lumm.

COMMERCIAL CLUB TO HEAR LECTURER

Wm. J. H. Boetcker Will Give Address at Annual Meeting Monday Night—Speaks Here Sunday.

Wm. J. H. Boetcker, president of the National Inside Association of America, with headquarters at Toledo, Ohio, who is a lecturer of repute, will give an address at the annual meeting of the commercial club at the Hotel Caledonia on Sunday evening. Mr. Boetcker is an able speaker and has an interesting message. He was secured through the efforts of J. A. Craig, who heard him recently in an Illinois city. Boetcker will give three addresses in the city Sunday, speaking at the morning and evening services of the Baptist church and at three o'clock in the afternoon at the Y. M. C. A. The subject for the morning will be "Why people do not go to church," in the evening, which will be a union service for the Baptist, Presbyterian and Congregational congregations, the topic will be: "What can the church do to solve modern problems?" and at three o'clock he will talk on "Why men fail and how to succeed as a man."

COPIES OF 1913 SCHOOL LAWS TO BE GIVEN OUT

Clerks of School Boards in Rock County May Secure Them From County Superintendent.

Superintendent of Schools O. D. Antiel has secured copies of the school laws for 1913. The laws were passed at the 1913 session of the legislature, the same being issued in pamphlet form at the direction of State Superintendent C. P. Cary. Clerks of school districts in Rock county are entitled to the pamphlets, one for each district, and may secure the same by calling at the superintendent's office. The new laws contain several important provisions which will be of much interest to the school boards and rules of the state board of health on school sanitary conditions, which have virtually the effect of law.

Not to Be Judged by Size.

An interesting and somewhat curious fact is that some of the tall men of genius have had moderate sized heads. Shelley, the poet, was tall, but had a small head, and some of the small men imbued with the divine spark had large heads, apparently proving that the size of the head has little to do with the quality of the brains.

Man was created to Live; not to Die.

The free lecture in Myers Theatre tomorrow afternoon will make plain to you the Bible testimony on this important question.

THIEVES RAID SHOP AND TAKE JEWELRY

Sam Warner's Place on South Main Street Burglarized of Articles Said to Be Worth $75 to $125.

Burglars entered the pool room and barbers shop of Sam Warner on South Main street sometime early this morning, made good their escape with a large number of small articles of jewelry, pipes and a dollar and a quarter in silver, the total loss being estimated at from $75 to $125, according to Mr. Warner.

Entrance to the place was made through one of the windows which open onto Court street, as it was found that the marauders had climbed upon a small shed which protects a rear door directly under the window and had pried it open, pulling out several small nails with which the frame was secured.

Once inside the intruders took their time to paw over the articles in the show cases, taking three watches, thirty or forty rings of different values, bracelets, cuff links, stick pins, neck chains and other trifles, which were displayed in the cases. In the front of the store they took a meerschaum pipe from the show case, but as far as could be noted they did not disturb the cash register, which was unlocked, was tampered with and $125 in silver was secured, practically all that was in the till.

Mr. Warner reported the burglary to the police this morning and an investigation was immediately started. Every indication points to local talent similar to that which did the work on North Main street stores several weeks ago.

The Bible teaches that Death is an enemy and the Grave is a prison house; that they are not Friends as some would have us believe. This subject will be fully discussed at the free lecture tomorrow 3 P. M. in Myers Theatre. You are invited.

DRAMA CLUB OFFERS

LADY GREGORY PLAY

"The Workhouse Ward" Presented by Capable Readers Draws Much Praise.

By far the most interesting meeting thus far was held by the Janesville Dramatic Club last evening in the council rooms of the city hall. A number of the members of the Twentieth Century class were present and enjoyed the evening's program. A paper on the great Joseph Jefferson of "Rip Van Winkle" fame was read by Miss Jacobson. This paper showed a great deal of research work and was extremely interesting as there were many among the listeners who had seen this great actor. Rev. Hoffmeister gave a critique of the "Second Mrs. Tanqueray" which showed an analytical study of the piece. There was some regret that the members of the club felt that the length of the program would not allow of a further discussion of this critique, as much interest has been shown in this play and there is a divided opinion as to its merit. At the next meeting there will be given the members an opportunity to give further expression to their opinions regarding this play.

Impressions of Automobile Show

J. A. Strimble Returns From A Four-Day Visit To The Chicago Automobile Show.

After spending four days at the Chicago Automobile Show this week, I returned with a stronger faith than ever in the Mitchell. The tendency of the interest of the majority of the spectators seemed to be toward the six and eight cylinder cars. The most striking impression was that the Mitchell was the car outside of the really higher priced cars that had embodied the T head motor. It is an expensive motor and it is only through the wonderful Mitchell organization could the Mitchell be sold at $1895 with this motor.

The demand for power, room, wheel base and flexibility is supplied in the Mitchell at a saving of from $1,000 to $3,000. I noticed and many spectators remarked that the cars which have been lowered in price have been lowered in quality at every point. Eighty years of service has demonstrated to the public that the Mitchell always makes good. If you were not at the show come in and I will tell you the news.

J. A. STRIMBLE.

WOMAN POSTMASTER FIRES HERSELF FROM SMALL JOB AFTER SIX MONTHS' FIGHT

[Special to the Gazette.]
Line, Colorado, Mass., Jan. 31.—With Democrats all over the country demanding political plums in the shape of jobs, and many of the jobs wanted being postmaster jobs, it is not surprising that today was a bitter fight with the government, to be permitted to resign her job as postmistress. Mrs. Upton spent her last day as postmistress today, and Mrs. Upton, in her resignation to Postmaster General Burleson. She had no idea but that it would be immediately accepted. But Mr. Burleson, strange to say, may seek in the city of Milwaukee, job seekers, actually refused to accept the resignation. Then began a fight by Mrs. Upton to be permitted to fire herself. She had the help in Congress of Representative Bradley of Massachusetts. Even then it took six months to win. During that period of warfare the government made a desperate effort to get some one to succeed Mrs. Upton. But in no hook or cranny could the government find one who would take over the responsibilities and small emoluments of the Line post-office. The great government of the United States, licked to fizzle by Mrs. Upton, decided to abolish the post office. After today Line postoffice will not be.

Interpreting Our Laws.

Ellen, whose family in the old country had known her by the more prosaic name of Ellen, lost no opportunity of promulgating all the freedoms of the new country that came her way. Sometimes they took an inverted form of handing out orders to her mistress. "Yez'll be careful, mum, that yez puts no paper in th's garbage bucket. This is orders, mum, from th' garbage bin tlemia."

IRISH PAPER TELLS OF ULSTER GUARDS

W. J. McGowan of This City Receives Papers From Brother Living in Newtownards, Near Belfast.

Interesting papers published in Newtownards Ireland, near Belfast, the center of the anti Home Rule demonstration, have been received by W. J. McGowan of this city from his brother, who is a member of the Ulster Volunteers of the Newtownards district, which are organized to protest against the passage or enforcement of a home rule for Ireland by the English Parliament. Mr. McGowan's brother comes from the same district and is much interested in the fight that is being made by his friends and relatives. The picture of the muster shows Mr. McGowan's brother in the battalion formation. The men are not armed but are taught formations and maneuvers and when the time comes, if need be, can be quickly equipped with rifles and munitions of war from supplies which have been secretly smuggled into Ireland during the past few months. Belfast and Ulster are the particular leading districts in the fight.

LOW PRICES CAUSE SHORTAGE IN FURS

Very Few Furs Brought to Local Market by Rock County Trappers.

Mild weather, lack of need for fur garments for "mild lady," have played their part in the business of the trappers who spend the winter months trapping for the market. Even the prices have dropped, which means that many who formerly made a lucrative business during the winter months are now seeking other occupations. Camps which have been established each winter at Lake Koshkonong and other likely places for trapping the muskrat, have been abandoned although it is ideal weather for out of door life. Not that the animals are scarcer but that the prices are not high enough to make it a good paying proposition.

While few know it, Janesville is one of the important fur buying points in the middle northwest. One firm alone has on hand muskrats like ten thousand dollars worth of furs purchased at prices far under those paid last year. Some of them are rare finds and bring good prices in the large markets. The present unsettled condition of prices, due to the warm weather, they are not worth as much as formerly. Local trappers always sell in Janesville and very few have been found in the stock of the local buyers.

Prices on all kinds of furs have been demoralized, falling to such a low point that trapping has brought very little profit to local trappers, where it is done only on a small scale. Kennedy and Lake, buyers here, have received over twenty thousand rats during the year. The fur market has been very active for the past five years, while in past years muskrats were worth from fifty to seventy-five cents and one year when the fur market was flooded with muskrats, they were worth only a few cents. ## Side Lights On The Circus Business

By
D. W. WATT

(Copyrighted.)

In making a brief review of the circus and circus people for the last half century and men that not only made themselves famous in the business, but also made millions of money, there is one thing peculiar about it all and that is that in but one instance were there any sons left after the passing of the old generation to perpetuate the names of the great shows that were famous for so many years.

At the time of Adam Forepaugh's death when the will was opened it read that the show must be sold to the highest bidder for cash and the proceeds equally divided between the widow and son. And of all the men in the business who was, as the saying would go, "always on the job," Adam Forepaugh was probably the closest student to his work of any of them. In all the years that I was with the great show there were not more than three days that Adam Forepaugh was away from the show and it was probably less than a dozen times that he failed to count up the tickets from the front door both afternoon and evening.

In his early career in the business, when they went overland by wagon, Adam Forepaugh was constantly with the show, driving his own team and within easy reach of any of the horses in case of an accident of any kind. So that from the beginning of his career in the business up until the time of his death he was constantly on the watch. While his name was famous the world over and he made millions in the business, there seemed at his death to be little left except millions that he had made and the name of Adam Forepaugh was soon dropped out of the business so far as the world was concerned, and those who knew him best and had traveled with him were about the only ones left to perpetuate the name.

Of all the many partners that P. T. Barnum had from his beginning in the business up until the time of his death none of these had sons to pick up the life work of the great men who had handled the reins of the great show for so many years. P. T. Barnum had no sons; James A. Bailey had none. At one time there were three Buckley boys from Delavan, Wis., W. C. Cooper, Dan Costello, James E. Cooper, Jim Hutchinson, W. W. Cole, but all of these except James A. Bailey dropped out of the business many years ago. Most of them built fortunes that figured into the millions yet at the death of James A. Bailey the life work of all these famous men seemed to come to an end and the great show finally dropped into the hands of the Ringlings.

Uncle John Robinson, as he had been known for many years, of Cincinnati, was a successful circus owner for many years, and he was the only one who left sons to perpetuate the name and carry on the great show after his death. Uncle John's sons have been running a show for many years and no show in the country ever did better through the Southern states than did Uncle John Robinson's.

A few years ago the Ringlings were billed to show in Cairo, Ill., on Sept. 1, and the story goes that an old darkey was reading the headlines of the bill board at Cairo, and the colored man read the lines in this way: "Ringling Brothers' Greatest Show on Earth, Sept. 1." The old colored man smiled and said: "I knows what these Ringling boys are all right for they're willing to acknowledge that they're the greatest show on earth, Sept. 1, and that must be Uncle John Robinson's."

Uncle John Robinson's was one of the first shows after the close of the war to visit the south and the first impression that was made on the colored people after they were out of bondage and able to pay their own way and go to a circus was a lasting one, and Uncle John Robinson's show to this day is a prime favorite all over the southern country.

There were also Egbert and Ellis Howe, twin brothers who at one time were proprietors of Howe's Great London Show, one of the best in the country, and yet neither of these Howes had sons that could have carried on the business.

The Montgomery Queen show was a very fine one in its day, but failed many years ago and was sold out at auction for a very small part of its original cost.

There were four of the Seils brothers—Eph, Lou, Adam and Pete—who lived to amass fortunes and build up a great show and yet today there is no living male heir of one of the Seils brothers, and at the death of the last one the show was sold at auction in Columbus, O., passing into the hands of the Ringling brothers and James A. Bailey of the Barnum show, and afterwards was consolidated by the Forepaugh, and for a few years toured the country under the name of Forepaugh & Seils, with Al Ringling as sole owner and manager.

So of all the great shows that have been built up in the last half century they have all passed into the hands of the Ringling brothers and been consolidated with their show and with the Barnum and Bailey, and it will not be long until the names of these great shows that were famous for many years will be almost forgotten. When I look back to the years that I spent in the business it almost seems like a dream to me, for all the old managers that I worked for and knew so well years ago have crossed over the divide.

A new show is being organized by the Jones brothers and Harry Wilson which will be an interesting and high class show for the coming season, and while they will run in but one train, it will be different, and many Janesville people will be interested to know that Harry Wilson, who had the famous den of performing lions here with the carnival company last summer, is one of the partners. The Billboard of last week has the following to say about the makeup of the new show:

"New York, Jan. 12.—A deal of interest is being evinced in circus circles here owing to the news of the new amalgamation of the Jones brothers, of J. Augustus Jones fame, with Harry G. Wilson, one of the best side show managers in the country, and for many seasons identified with the Pawnee Bill show, Miller Bros. 101 Ranch, Buffalo Bill show, and lately with the Two Bills show.

"The rumor states that the new combination will represent a twenty-car show, carrying big top, menagerie, side show, and some smaller tented attractions.

"The Billboard representative was able to obtain an interview with J. Augustus Jones and Harry Wilson, during which the former said: 'We have not yet laid down all of our plans, but we have decided that our show will not exceed one full train of cars. The policy of the entertainment will be strictly circus, with a big feature menagerie of more than 150 wild beasts and specimens of rare foreign animals. Our program will be constructed along entirely original lines in which trained wild animal features will predominate. We will carry novel spectacle and will give daily street parades for which we have conceived several new ideas and features. We hope to be able to open our season some time in April or early in May, and we are confident that we will be able to offer the public something away from the ordinary run of tented railroad aggregations.'

"The shows will be billed as the Jones Brothers & Wilson and the combination seems a particularly appropriate one inasmuch that all parties concerned are show men of tried and proven experience. J. Augustus Jones will have charge of the advance and there are few men better qualified for the task.

"Mr. Jones and Mr. Wilson were seen at the Brooklyn docks, to attend to the unloading and delivery of several cases of wild animals, which arrived at the Erie Basin from Singapore per the British S. S. Calcutta.

Col. Cody and his co-actors are on and F. G. Bonills were callers in Chicago while on their way from Denver to Washington, accompanied by Gen. Nelson A. Miles, Gen. Baldwin and Gen. Charles King, to exhibit the Indian war moving pictures recently made in the far west to the government officials in the national capitol. Col. Cody and his confreres are enthusiastic over these pictures, which they claim eclipse anything ever made in this country in the moving picture line. Col. Cody, as president of the Showmen's League of America, will probably lead the grand march at the ball at the Hotel Sherman in Chicago March 4. Col. Cody is in splendid health and he anticipates a record breaking season with the Seils-Floto-Buffalo Bill show, which is to open at Albuquerque in March.

Makes Nest Lightning Proof.
The humming bird in Australia, no less than man, protects its habitation with a lightning rod. The humming bird before a devastating thunder storm bursts prudently covers the outside of its little nest with cobweb. Silk is a non-conductor of electricity, and since cobweb is silk the humming bird's nest is thereby rendered lightning proof.

MOSCOW

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Slawash."

MOSCOW, the understudy of St. Petersburg as capital of the Russian empire, is as large as Philadelphia and resembles that city as closely as whiskers resemble Dutch cheese.

Moscow is so foreign, in fact, that the moving picture show has scarcely obtained a foothold there, and the horse still competes successfully with the automobile.

Moscow lies on the banks of the river Moskva, which winds through the city at will in the springtime and is connected with St. Petersburg, 400 miles north, by the night express, which is four hours late. Viewed from a distance the city looks like a gigantic turnip patch bottom side up. This is an optical illusion, however, as the turnips are merely church spires. There are more churches in Moscow than there are cabarets in New York, but their effect upon the civilization of the city does not seem to be quite as good.

Moscow is profusely afflicted with old cobblestone paving, and a trip through the city in a drosky behind a team horse with a tall gothic collar is as interesting as a trip down the Coney Island bump-the-bumps.

The citizens, judged from the streets, seem to be composed equally of priests, soldiers and long-bearded men in fur-lined dressing gowns. It is not up to date, but it has managed to accumulate its million people and enough manufacturers to keep them busy without a commercial club, which is better than any American city can do. Moscow is 800 years old and was once the capital of Russia, but owing to the difficulty of moving the Baltic sea into the city it lost its job 200 years ago and is now merely a winter resort for royalty. Among the prominent men who have been entertained in Moscow was Napoleon, who visited it in 1812—at which time the city was burned in his honor.

Moscow is famous for its gigantic bells. One of them weighs 220 tons, but they don't ring it. They keep it on a pedestal and use it for a chapel. If it were not so large it would do finely as a meeting place for the Progressive party of Moscow.

AN IDEAL WOMAN'S LAXATIVE.
Who wants to take salts, or castor oil, when there is nothing better than Dr. King's New Life Pills for all troubles. They act gently and naturally on the stomach and liver, stimulate and regulate your bowel and done up the entire system. Price 25c. At all druggists.

RELEASED CONVICTS MAKE POOR SHOWING IN GERMAN TROOPS

Zabern Trouble Starts Movement of Obtaining Higher Personal
Honor for Cologne Police.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Berlin, Jan. 31.—Criminals generally turn out to be cowards on the battlefield, according to observation in the cases of 225 men with jail or prison sentences in their record made during the campaign of Italy in Trioli by Dr. Consiglio, chief of staff surgeon with the Italian army and reported in a German medical paper. Dr. Consiglio says:

"The abnormal man is unfit for methodically disciplined effort in times of peace. In war, where the demands of discipline and the strain of systematic preparations increases, he displays invariably sooner or later a reaction against his surroundings, which manifests itself chiefly in morbid lack of discipline, disobedience, insubordination, or even desertion. The moral strain and the violent manifestations of war induce in such men physical disturbances, excitable crises, hysteria and epileptic attacks and acute insanity. They lack the possibility of methodical action, they will not respond to the multiple demands of the instant and to the continued physical and intellectual strain.

Cowardly in Battle. "While the habitual criminal, although impulsive and aggressive toward superiors and comrades, generally is cowardly in battle, there are among the occasional criminals, those who have gone wrong through drink or love of adventure, who distinguish themselves in warfare. But even these relapsed regularly into breaches of discipline and were useless for ordered effort.

"The soldier adapted to modern warfare, capable of continued effort, able to retain his cool presence of mind in battle, is a man who has shown himself in time of peace to be an able, well-disciplined citizen. The time seems to be past when the blind courage of the adventurer, the reckless of danger, constitutes an especially valuable element in deciding the fate of nations."

Officers Superior. Claims of the German army officer to the possession of higher grade of personal honor than that of the ordinary civilian, emphasized in so many ways since the Zabern affair, and to a certain preferential treatment before the law is soundly refuted by Cologne in the police regulations of Cologne and it is probable that an interpellation will be brought in the Diet asking whether similar police regulations are in force in other cities in Prussia.

In Cologne the policeman renders himself liable to punishment if he disregards "the consideration due the military calling." In cases of misdemeanor he is, under no circumstances, to arrest an officer, it is more consonant with the general interest that a violation of police ordinances remain for the time unpunished and be later the subject of a reprimand than that a conflict should be occasioned between officers and police officials.

An officer may be arrested for felony, but even in this case the policeman is empowered to leave the offender at liberty. The police officials must consider carefully that in arresting an officer they are not dealing merely with a person, but that by the compromising of the officer's uniform of the army of his majesty the king is involved, and that an extraordinary circumstances justify such an arrest and absolve the policeman for it." It is even provided that members of the so-called vice-squad whose duty it is to control women of the streets, shall not molest such women if these are in the company of officers.

Builds New Estates. Duke Ernst of Brunswick, son-in-law of Emperor William and two months a sovereign, has lost no time in starting of palace building. One new place for which designs are now ready is planned as a summer residence for the duke and Princess Victoria Luise and will stand in a magnificent forest, belonging to him near Brunswick city. Another palace near Blankenburg will be rebuilt for a hunting seat. The duke's building activity is probably due in part to rivalry with the crown prince, whose plans against allowing Ernst August to ascend the throne of Brunswick have not been forgotten. The crown prince and crown princess are now building a residence at Potsdam, but Ernst August, with his great personal fortune, will be able to eclipse this.

Honor Zeppelin. The town of Friedrichshafen, on the German side of Lake Constance has decided to commemorate Count Zeppelin's seventy-fifth birthday by founding a museum to show everything available concerning aerial navigation by dirigible balloons. Many of Count Zeppelin's manuscripts, drawings from books, and reduced models of his airships will be placed on exhibition. Count Zeppelin made his first balloon ascension in the United States during the Civil War.

Wealthy Socialist. The Swiss estate of August Bebel, the late German socialist leader, has been appraised by the tax office at Zurich at $250,000. He had other property in Germany probably worth $50,000. The terms of his will have not been made public.

DICKENS' ADMIRERS OBJECT TO VERDICT OF LITERARY JURY

Controversy Over Conviction of John
Jasper Threatens to Divide London
Dickens' Lovers.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

London, Jan. 31.—There is talk of appeal from the verdict of manslaughter found by the literary jury which recently tried John Jasper for the murder of Edwin Drood. The more serious-minded members of the Dickens Society who expected a careful weighing of evidence with the hope of ending the controversy over Dickens' unfinished novel in which Jasper and Drood were the chief characters are disgruntled because the trial developed into such a farce, "and such a dull farce at that." There were many who did not appreciate the humor which G. K. Chesterton, as judge, and George Bernard Shaw, as foreman of the jury, tried to inspect, and the convicted defendant whose part was taken seriously by F. T. Harry, asserts that there are ample grounds for an appeal for no other reason than that the verdict was solely the decision of Foreman Shaw "arrived at during the luncheon interval" nearly three hours before the end of the trial, as the foreman himself admitted. Most of the jurors had left before the trial ended.

Walter Critch, one of the counsel for the defense, is even more severe with Shaw. He declares that the verdict was "typically Shavian and therefore typically farcical and un satisfactory." It also had the more flagrant defect of being absolutely untrue, for the jurors were not consulted as to its terms.

Survey by Wireless. A letter from the Bolivian Survey Commission dated Abuna River, November 25, announces that the expedition commanded by Herbert A. Edwards of the British army has completed over 200 miles of wireless survey and incidentally "inaugurated a new era in exploratory surveying." The expedition fixed all of its longitudes by wireless telegraphy from Porto Vallo, situated 120 miles from the base of operations. The signals were received every night by means of a rough receiving set and a long wire which was rigged up on trees. Commander Edwards declares that these methods will enable the explorer to dispense with chronometers and easily and accurately fix all longitudes.

Draws Record Pension. A record in state pensions is established in the case of Viscount Rose, former cabinet minister, whose death occurred recently. He drew a pension of $10,000 yearly for twenty-one years, his total of $210,000 in pension having been approached only by G. P. Villiers who established the former record of $150,000 at his death in 1908.

There are now only three former ministers drawing pensions. Lord George Hamilton, who receives $10,000 a year, Henry Chaplin, whose pension is $6,000 yearly, and Lord Balfour of Burleigh, who also receives $6,000. These pensions are drawn upon the support of a parliament which provides that a former member of cabinet who has no means to maintain his dignity as an ex-minister may apply for state aid.

Admit Woman to Bar. A bill is to be introduced in the House of Commons next session which aims at giving English women the right to practice as lawyers. It is a question whether it will receive the support of the Government, without which it stands little chance of success.

The matter has been fought in the courts for several years and the decision to introduce a bill results from the judgment of the Court of Appeals, which in December decided that the present law did not give women the right to practice, and that the only tribunal which could give women such rights was parliament. The grounds for this judgment were not that there was any inherent unfitness among women which prevented them from appearing in law practice, but merely that there never has, in fact, been a woman lawyer in England. The Court held that this common law disability was further supported by a dictum of Lord Coke, issued over 300 years ago concerning those who had become entitled to practice law from time immemorial. As old as it is this dictum is still binding in English law.

Endicott Memorial. Walter Hines Page, the American ambassador, has tentatively arranged to unveil at Weymouth in June the memorial in that town to Richard Clark and John Endicott, two Weymouthmen who took part in the early colonization of America. Mrs. Joseph Chamberlain is a descendant of John Endicott and she assisted considerably in the movement inaugurated by the town council for the memorial. The town of Weymouth, Massachusetts, U. S. A., and the city of Boston, and towns in Newfoundland have been asked to send representatives to the unveiling. The Chamberlain family will also be represented.

HYOMEI RELIEVES IN FIVE MINUTES

Help Comes Quickly When Hyomei Is Used for Catarrh, Bronchitis or Cold in the Head.

If you suffer from raising of mucous, husky voice, discharge from the nose, droppings in the throat, sniffles, or any other symptoms of catarrh, or have bronchitis or cold in the head, surely use Hyomei. It will banish the disease germs in the nose, throat and lungs and give quick and permanent relief or money refunded by Smith Drug Co.

The Hyomei treatment gives a tonic healing effect to the air you breathe, destroys the catarrhal germs, stops the poisonous secretions, soothes the irritated mucous membrane and makes a marked improvement in the general health.

The complete outfit, including inhaler and bottle of liquid, costs $1.00; extra bottles of liquid, if later needed, 50 cents.

BUICK MAKES 20 MILES ON ONE GALLON OF GAS

Tests Made at Factory at Flint, Mich., Are Confirmed Here.

By ST. CLAIR COUZENS

Buick Six Has Broken All Records For Economy

We have proved absolutely that the Buick Six uses less gasoline per mile than any other six-cylinder car has even claimed. We have proved that it uses less than most fours.

The test of this car was made in Chicago, January 14, under the supervision of F. E. Edwards, formerly Technical Expert for the American Automobile Association, Darwin Hatch, Technical Expert of "Motor Age," and Reed Parker, Automobile Editor of The Chicago Tribune.

Automobile Editors of The Chicago newspapers were present and the above headline is one that appeared in their papers, together with signed affidavit. This tells the story of the greatest economy record ever made by a six-cylinder car. Nothing can be more convincing of Buick Economy than this record of 20 1-10 miles on a gallon of gasoline.

THE BUICK OVERHEAD VALVE MOTOR USES LESS FUEL PER MILE THAN ANY OTHER MOTOR OF EQUAL SIZE, AMERICAN OR FOREIGN MAKE. THIS WE GUARANTEE.

THE BUICK OVERHEAD VALVE MOTOR IS ALSO GUARANTEED TO DEVELOP MORE POWER THAN ANY OTHER MOTOR OF EQUAL SIZE.

It is not only in the "Six" that this motor is installed—every Buick Car in all models from $950 to $1985 is equipped with this wonderful Buick Overhead valve Motor.

See the Buick models at our garage. They equal any car at any price in beauty of line and comfort, besides being cars of Greatest Proved Economy and Power.

ROCKERS ON BABY COACH

May Be Used as Cradle When Kept in the House.

In the manufacture of baby coaches a very marked advance was made a few years ago of the design of a vehicle which could be folded into a compact space, enabling parents to take it upon their trips and thus avoiding themselves of short trips and excursions. The convenience of these folding perambulators has been still further increased by the invention of detachable rockers by which the vehicle may be readily transformed into an excellent cradle when it is necessary to store it indoors.

The rockers consist merely of curved strips of wood, with grooves and slots for the purpose of securing them to the wheels. One rocker extends from one of the front wheels to the other and the second bridges the four wheels. There are very convenient means of quickly attaching the rockers in place and the result is a very serviceable cradle.

Good Advice.

Keep thy heart apart from sorrow, and be not anxious about trouble which is yet to come.—Giraud.

At the headquarters of the Woman's Party in Chicago.

Voting paraphernalia of every sort has been installed in the headquarters of the Woman's Party of Cook county, in a Chicago hotel. The board of election commissioners has sent an expert to instruct members of the organization who are to serve as judges and clerks of election this spring. According to this expert, his pupils proved quicker than men at grasping the intricacies of operating voting machinery.

WOMAN'S PAGE

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"SHARPER THAN A SERPENT'S TOOTH."
LETTER FRIEND sends me a newspaper clipping telling of two cases recently brought before the court in her town. One was that of an aged father of eight children who was obliged to go to court to make them support him. The other was the case of an invalid mother, whose three sons had previously been ordered by the court to support her; two of them had fallen behind in their payments. The judge gave them their choice of paying regularly or going to jail.

"The enclosed clipping from yesterday's paper prompted me to address you these few lines. Why not make mention of such things in your space? I know two cases as bad as the ones sent you. One a devoted mother with one daughter indulged and pampered to womanhood, and when she has a home of her own tells her mother to 'get to it'—out of here."

"Another one whose husband died and left a little home and insurance and four married children. They gave her no rest until she turned her all over to them, she to live with them alternately. All treatment made her leave them all and now she has one rented room and does washing for her support. Are the parents to blame or the children? Cannot something be done to remedy such conditions?"

As I read these four instances I can quite understand the meaning of the phrase "my blood boils."

We have all raged over King Lear's sufferings and here is the tragedy of the old King being daily enacted about us, stripped of its majesty, to be sure, but retaining all its pitifulness.

"Can't something be done about it?" says my letter friend.

In the first place, through the law, as in the cases which the newspaper clipping set forth.

But there are many instances in which the law, for various reasons, cannot or will not be invoked. What can be done about such cases? Well, it seems to me that for them a power mightier than the law should be used, the power of public opinion.

The neighbors and friends of people who do such things (I suppose they must have friends, although it seems difficult to believe) should show their disapproval. Such people should be ostracized by decent folk; they should be shunned as if they had committed some serious crime, as indeed they have.

My letter friend also says, "Are the parents to blame or the children?" In her own letter she partially answers this, for she tells of a girl "pampered to womanhood" who turned on her mother. Where there is a selfish, ungrateful child, there are usually parents who have permitted these qualities to develop. I do not mean by this to excuse the children. No indulgence, no lack of discipline in childhood is a sufficient bringing up or heredity can in any way excuse such conduct as this. It can only partially explain it.

Just one word more, a word of warning. In your indignation against such people, don't forget to look inward into your own life. You would be incapable of letting your father or mother want for material things, but remember, things are not the whole of life. There are many old folks who have plenty of material comforts, but who are starving for love, care, consideration and love. Be very sure before you become indignant that there are none such in your life or home.

Heart and Home Problems

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am eighteen years of age and considered beautiful by a great many people. When I first moved here I was very popular and very popular.

me, but I am afraid I will not recognize his attention, and therefore when we meet he treats me very coldly. How can I make him see I still love him? (2) I am not very much in love with him, but I have found out I cannot truly return his love. Can I return his love and let him know I cannot continue his attention in a way that will not break us completely? (1) It seems to me that if you would smile pleasantly at him the next time you meet, as if nothing had happened, and ask him when he is coming to call on you again, as you miss the pleasant times you used to spend together, he would soon show whether he still cares for you or not. Don't throw yourself at him. Just be nice.

(2) Return his fraternity pin, as you have no right to wear it unless you are engaged to marry him. In returning it you might say that you have just found that to be a fact and of course you must give it back to him. If he should ask you to become engaged, to him, simply tell him that although you are very fond of him, you cannot care for him in any other way.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of sixteen and would like to know if it is improper to spoon with the fellows?

(2) Is it all right to go out auto riding without a chaperone?

(3) Is it improper to accept a ring from a young man's school friend as a gift?

(4) It is considered unladylike to let your escort kiss you good night?

(1) It is impossible to spoon with the fellows at any age. The only person to spoon with is your husband or the man you are engaged to marry.

(2) It is always best to have a chaperone along when a girl is young and apt to be giddy. A great many girls think they are fully able to take care of themselves in any emergency, but they only think that because they are young and inexperienced. That is where a chaperone comes in strong.

(3) Jewelry from a young man unless he is her fiancé.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of eighteen and I am in love with a young man two years my senior. With whom I went for some time last year. Some trouble came up between us and we rarely spoke. I thinking he was made and he thinking I was to blame. But I have found out through several dear friends that he is still in love with me.

I mix more with the girls and boys? B. S.

Some girls, I am ashamed to say, achieve a certain kind of popularity by being bold and not very modest. You had better stay shy and bashful than be like that, for you will never get any real satisfaction out of such popularity. I think if you will always be pleasantly sympathetic and considerate of others, you will find many friends.

When a girl is new in a town, she is apt to be "rushed" by the young folks. After they become accustomed to her she may think her popularity has died down, but the truth is that she is only simmering down to her steady friends. So be contented, little girl, and happy. What is happening to you happens to everybody else, in similar circumstances.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

HERE ought to be one or two occasions in the year when unregenerate man is freed from the dietary restraints laid upon him by a hygienic helpmate, and may eat all kinds of pie and as much of such kind as he chooses.

PIE, THE POPULAR DESSERT.

In the following collection you will find some which you may not have tried:

Pineapple Pie.—Cream a tablespoonful of butter, add a cupful of sugar, and when well mixed the yolks of two eggs well beaten and a cupful of shredded pineapple, lightly folded in the well beaten whites of two eggs and bake in a single crust.

Amber Pie.—Take three-fourths of a cup of sugar, one-half cup of sour milk, the yolks of two eggs, two tablespoonfuls of butter creamed with the sugar, one-half tablespoonful of vinegar, a tablespoonful of flour, a teaspoonful each of cloves, cinnamon, allspice and one-half cupful of raisins. Make a meringue of the two whites of the eggs, adding two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Bake with one crust.

Chocolate Pie.—Cook together six tablespoonfuls of sugar mixed with four tablespoonfuls of grated chocolate, add a pint of boiling water, the yolks of two eggs and two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch. Flavor with vanilla and pour into a baked crust. Cover with a meringue made from the whites of the eggs.

Apple Meringue.—Fill a rich lower crust with seasoned apple sauce, flavor with nutmeg and bake. When done, spread with a meringue made with two eggs and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Bake a golden brown.

Cocanut Pie.—Take four eggs well beaten, add a pint of milk and two-thirds of a cup of sugar, one cupful of cocconut, one teaspoonful of vanilla, and bake in one crust. Sprinkle sugar over the top after baking.

Banana Cream Pie.—Make a custard of two eggs, a quarter of a cup of sugar and a pint of milk. Into this put the pulp of two bananas well mashed. Turn into a pastry lined pie plate and bake until well done. Cover with a meringue, if so desired.

Date Pie.—Cook a pint of milk and a third of a pound of dates in a double boiler 20 minutes. Strain and rub through a sieve; add two beaten eggs, a fourth of a teaspoon of salt, a few gratings of nutmeg, and bake in a single crust.

Washington Pie.—This is such a favorite that it should be brought to mind often. Make a simple layer or sponge cake, and bake in two layers. Put it together with sweetened and flavored whipped cream.

Tooth Talks

Now we come to the problem, how can we establish clean mouths, sound teeth and the tooth brush habit? To try and fill the teeth of the children in our public schools is a noble charity, but an endless chain. Hardly one-tenth of the population of a country such as ours could find a sufficient number of dentists to fill their teeth.

I believe it to be a conservative estimate to say that the children found in the first five grades in our schools would average not less than six good sized cavities in their teeth. You can roughly estimate the immense amount of work there would be for a corps of dentists to cope with such a task as filling their teeth.

But let us assume that it is possible to fill these teeth and save them for the time being, how are we to prevent a recurrence of decay as well as the check of the flood with the children coming to the school from the primary grades every year? Surely every dentist knows that the tooth brush alone will not stop it, and every dentist knows as well as the parents how difficult it is to induce children to properly brush their teeth and take care of their mouths as they should.

Would it not be better to evolve a system for the prevention of dental decay and the establishment of clean mouths than try to cope with the hopeless task of filling thousands of decayed teeth? I am heartily in sympathy with the scheme that every city should have a dental clinic for the school children for the relief of pain, and I believe it is inhuman in this twentieth century to allow the poorer classes of children to suffer as they do from toothache.

It is a clinical fact that fully eighty per cent of dental decay can be prevented if monthly or bi-monthly surface polishing of the teeth with orange wood sticks and fine pumice can be systematically followed. These treatments, of course, to be augmented by the faithful and correct use of the tooth brush, floss silk and lime water as a mouth wash.

Suppose it were possible to start a year from this September and place in our schools trained women who would confine their efforts the first year to the children in the first grade. These women to be trained and educated as hygienists, who would be competent to give each child a surface treatment of the teeth once a month. Each woman to have the supervision, to start with, of two hundred children. These children in the first grade to be taught the proper use of the tooth brush, mouths inspected daily for cleanliness and no child permitted to enter the class room who had not brushed his teeth. Hands and face to be cleaned and hair combed. Bodily cleanliness also insisted upon and efforts made to secure the cooperation of the parents. Several teachers in the primary grades have told

Women Worth While

MRS. JOHN K. SHIELDS.

By Selene Armstrong Harmon

The desk at which Mrs. John K. Shields sits when she goes over her household accounts, or replies to the invitations that the morning mail has brought, is the identical one at which a member of the royal family of France transacted similar business during the reign of the ill-fated Louis XVI. One which resembles it closely but is less elaborate in workmanship, is now counted among the treasures of the British embassy in Washington, near this desk in the library of Senator and Mrs. Shields, of Tennessee. It came into possession of the Shields family long before she was born. They have been in constant use all these years and years.

To a woman who loves genuine and beautiful antiques—anything from an ancient Chinese incense burner to an old pie-crust mahogany table—a day spent in the home of Mrs. Shields would be a rare privilege.

Senator and Mrs. Shields may be regarded as newcomers in Washington. That is, they have been at the capital less than twelve months. They were married a little over a year ago in Knoxville, and Senator Shields took his seat in the United States senate in January of last year. They have taken for the present season the big apartment on the Avenue of the Presidents which the Speaker and Mrs. Champ Clark formerly occupied. It is here that one sees not a collection at all, but a rare and beautiful objects in Mrs. Shields' possession.

The best thing about my collection, says Mrs. Shields, "is that it is not a collection at all. By this I mean that I have never been in any sense of the word a collector. These things, which my friends are good enough to find interesting, are merely those that I delight to use every day and which have given pleasure to the women of my family for generations. Here, for instance, in this little inlaid bush box are the two Dresden china tea caddies in which my great-grandmother, my grandmother and my mother kept their black and green tea."

Pointing to two great Sevres vases almost as large as those which ornament the mantels in the East room of the White House, Mrs. Shields continued:

"You will rarely find two such old pieces in such a state of perfect preservation. Here, too, is some old English silver in the form of a severely plain and much used little sugar bowl and cream pitcher, and in two rather ornate cake and fruit baskets."

This old cabinet you see in the drawing room belonged to my great-grandmother. In it I have placed the necklace she wore, its gold pendants fine as lace work, and set with what is said to be white sapphires."

Mrs. Shields has two children by a former marriage, Robert Swelton Cowan and Jeannette Cowan. The latter probably will be introduced to the Washington society next winter.

BARONESS SUED BY LOVER CALLS JEWELS "GIFT FOR AN IMMORAL CONSIDERATION"

Baroness May de Pallandt.

Baroness May de Pallandt, formerly Miss Marie Jugus of Chicago, is the defendant in a sensational law suit in London. The plaintiff is Dr. Ernest Thomas Villiers Appleby, formerly a professor in Minnesota university, and he wants $20,000 which he was obliged to pay a Paris jeweler, he having signed notes with the baroness to that extent. The woman's defense is that the act of Appleby was in consideration of their living together and thus his claim has no validity in law.

me that even on the coldest days in winter it is impossible to close the windows for five minutes on account of the odor from the children's bodies. Such a condition of affairs should not be permitted, and it is unnecessary in a country where water is so plentiful. Talks in the class room as well as the use of the stereopticon in the assembly rooms would greatly aid in securing the desired results. These nurses could also be of great aid to the medical inspectors. At the end of the year they would follow the children into the second grade and a new corps of nurses would enter the first grade with the new pupils. This to be repeated for five years, until the first corps of women are caring for dental decay.

Now what would such a system mean to the children. It would mean that from the first day that the child entered school it would be taught cleanliness. That when the first permanent tooth entered the mouth it would be under the supervision of the nurse who would teach the child how to keep it clean and who would also aid with the monthly polishing. It would mean that during the first five years of school life habits for cleanliness could be established that would mold these boys and girls into new types of men and women. Fully three-quarters of the diseases incident to child life would be eliminated. With an additional knowledge of food values and how to properly masticate their food instead of bolting it, the main factors for hygiene would be covered."—From Oral Hygiene.

EVERYDAY TALKS FOR EVERYDAY PEOPLE

BY FRANCES JOYCE KENNEDY.

The successful man and the man who always minds his own business—counting toward that goal is the man who is able to draw the line with a fine distinction between the affairs of his associates and his own.

He practices strict economy without descending to penuriousness, pays promptly and is honest from principle. He lives systematically.

The successful woman must do the same. Whether she is in business in the outside world or in her own home she must put into practice every day of her life the same principles that her husband or brother employs to bring him success.

A woman goes out for the afternoon, stays longer than she really meant, the result is a cold supper. What if the man of the place, because he "forgot the time," missed a business appointment, lost a good deal, and then calmly announced that he thought it would be all right for this time?

The successful woman if she runs a home, must look to details, must keep house, all day every day if she wants to get the right kind of results—if she wants to aid her husband in the gaining of a home.

It is not a good policy to be forever sighing for the days that have long fled, but if we just turned back the least of time long enough to get a good view of the way our modern kitchen house maybe we might learn a lot to our own and our families' advantage. We might find out that it really is cheaper to do our own baking, to say nothing of the fact that it is far healthier.

You can say that statistics prove that it is but three cents cheaper to make a batch of bread than it is to buy it, not counting your time. Well, you don't have to stop all other work in the home to bake a batch of bread. When it's finished the baker's bread cannot compare with it, now can it?

Then too, have you made fruit cakes, counted them, and figured up the cost of your material and found out whether you made or lost in the work? Have you kept track of just how much that cake cost that you stirred up and baked before the fire used to prepare the dinner was burned out, cost? How much can you save by making your own cookies?

All these things taken individually count for little, but collectively they mount up. This is no slap at the bakeries, but why spend all your husband's income in this way when the home made baking is so superior? If you are the mother of a family tell me which food is best liked in your home—the baker's or the home-grown?

The successful man minds his own business without interfering with his neighbors; he practices economy without descending to penuriousness. Do we on our side do as much?

THE TABLE.

Silver Cake.—Cream together a cupful of sugar and half cupful of butter and beat into them the whites of four eggs, then a half cupful of cold water. Sift a pint of flour with a heaping teaspoonful of baking powder and add this gradually, beating to a light froth. Stir into the last, a teaspoonful of rosewater and bake in a loaf. Cover with icing flavored with rosewater.

Corn Blisque.—Drain the liquor from a can of corn. Chop the corn very fine, put it over the fire in a quart of salted water and simmer gently for an hour. Rub through a colander, return to the fire with the water, add a teaspoonful of sugar and when this melts, two tablespoonfuls of flour rubbed into two of butter. Stir until smooth and pour slowly upon a pin of heated milk. Season with salt and pour the soup gradually upon two beaten eggs. Sent immediately to the table.

Baked Cabbage.—Wash Tomato Sauce.—Boil a cabbage in two waters, drain cut fine and season with salt and pepper. Grease a pudding dish and put a layer of the cabbage in the bottom of it; cover this layer with tomato sauce and sprinkle with a few fine crumbs. Proceed in this way until the dish is full, having the last layer of crumbs. Bake for half an hour.

Harvard Beets.—Wash twelve small beets, cook in boiling water until soft, remove the skins, and cut the beets in thin slices. Add a little fancy shapes, using a French vegetable cutter. Mix one-half cup of sugar and one-half tablespoonful of corn-starch. Add one-half cup of vinegar and let boil five minutes. Pour over the beets and let stand on the back of the range one-half hour. Just before serving add two tablespoonfuls of butter.

ROCK PRAIRIE FARM IS WELL DESCRIBED

PROF. A. B. WEST TELLS OF INTEREST DERIVED FROM PERSONAL VISIT.

NATURE SPOTS TREES

Wonderful Spot Has Been Managed by a Woman, While Sons Grew Up—Books Are Kept.

Because it is interesting to set a farm in operation and because any one with an open mind may learn much from seeing how another man manages a farm, it was with pleasure that the writer accepted the invitation for an over night visit to a farm home situated about three miles from Janesville.

As one approaches this farm he is impressed by the evidences of thrift in the well kept fences and buildings. Its three hundred acres are admirably located on the edge of beautiful Rock prairie, and the cultivated land is in wood lot to insure sufficient wood for cooking and also for heating the big house.

The house and farm buildings are located on a little rise of ground and the lawn slopes from the house to the road. The generous breadth of lawn is in keeping with the acreage of the farm and shows that beauty has not been sacrificed to utility. Native trees have been left in just the right places, great burr oaks, butternuts and elm, and these are supplemented by others which have been planted and by shrubbery at the borders.

The farm has for many years been managed by a woman. Whether or not this accounts for the combination of beauty and utility we are unable to say. During these years the two sons have been growing to manhood, and now having taken the short course in agriculture at the state university, and the mother having married, she has help, and the management is the happy one of family co-operation.

A system of farm bookkeeping is practiced which shows expenditures and receipts, so the financial standing is no guess work.

The main business of the farm is dairying, there being kept a stock of the barn. The breed kept is short horn a dual purpose breed; but the sons believing that better results may be obtained from a strictly dairy breed, are advocating a change to the Guernseys, which change is now in progress. Thirty cows are being milked, yielding a large amount daily.

The milk is sold in Janesville to a dealer at $1.75 per hundred in winter, with an average price of $1.55 for the year. The milk is weighed each day at the farm and if for any reason there is falling off in the number of pounds the cause of such falling off is immediately reached for and removed. In this way it is possible to keep up the milk supply.

For roughage the cows are fed clover hay and corn stover. The succulent feed consists of about a peck of beets per day for each cow, corn meal and bran complete the ration which would be classified as a wide ration. The cows are watered twice a day from a tank in the yard filled by a gasoline engine. Though some authorities claim that watering cows once a day is sufficient, experience on this farm proves that more milk is obtained from watering twice a day.

All the feed the herd excepting the bran is produced upon the farm, and the raising of clover hay cuts down the bill for bran by furnishing a large share of the necessary protein. This is in the future to be increased by the use of alfalfa. It plans work out satisfactory and the crop has already been put into this valuable crop, with more in prospect.

There is also raised upon this farm pedigreed grain, Wisconsin No. 12 in corn, Odebreucker buster oats. The surplus over what is consumed on the farm is disposed of for seed and in the market. A farming mill, or grain grader, which removes chaff, weed seeds or seeds of other grains is used to insure clean grain for seed or market. It was an interesting sight to view the bins of this beautiful grain.

The barn is a modern one, having been built within ten years. It is 36 feet wide by 108 feet long, with a high, well lighted center, and a driveway leading through the center. At each end are double roller doors, so that one entering closes the door behind him, also double roller doors at the outside ones. Coming inside, one is surprised at two things, first that there are no pillars in the basement, the upper floor being supported by truss work like a bridge; second, that the usual stable odor is missing. Looking about for the cause, one is surprised to find that there is no King system of ventilation. Instead there are chutes leading up through the hay, with covers, which may be opened or closed according to the weather. The barn is provided with ventilators in the roof, and the four air escaping from the stable through the chutes passes up through the ventilators.

There are driveways leading to the barn floor at both the front and rear of the barn, the bins for the grain being at each side of the floor, and under the high driveway at the rear is the root cellar. This is filled with a trap door in the floor of the driveway, the wagon being driven up to the opening and the contents being emptied directly into the cellar. This cellar opens into the stable below, so it is convenient of access in feeding time.

The stable is fitted with patent swinging ties, which enable the cows to lie down in comfort and lick themselves at will. The cows were clean and looked the embodiment of contentment. The barn and house are lighted with acetylene gas, at an expense of about $10 per year.

Another important department on the farm is that of poultry. Three hundred White Wyandottes are yearlings housed in two groups, the hens and the male birds in the other, breeding purposes and the remainder are dressed and sold to their private customers in the city of Janesville. The eggs are put up in neat packages and are also sold to private customers, and these as well as the dressed poultry bring the highest market price. During the month of March one year the sale of eggs given a variety of grains and green feed and changes are made in their feed often enough to keep appetites keen.

The eggs are hatched in the old-fashioned way with hens, but after hatching they are put into brooders, so that the hens may return to the business of laying. In summer colony houses on runners are put out in the fields for the accommodation of the growing fowls.

Other livestock consists of fifty Berkshire hogs, but a study of their housing and care must be left to a subsequent visit. The farm ministers to the needs of its human family by produce from a well kept garden stocked with various kinds of small fruit, and a young orchard is one of the objects of care of the house mother.

PROF. ADAMS ADMITS TAXES ARE HIGHER

MEMBER OF STATE TAX COMMISSION VOUCHSAFES STARTLING INFORMATION.

PUBLISHES STATEMENT

Report Which Blue Book and Tax Commission Formerly Gave Now Comes From Unofficial Source.

(By Ellis B. Usher.)

Milwaukee, Jan. 31.—During the past week Prof. T. S. Adams of the University of Wisconsin and also of the Wisconsin tax commission, has performed a public service in a private manner by giving to the world what is nowhere else obtainable, a detailed statement of the taxes levied and the expenditures provided for the current fiscal year.

But even this statement is unofficial and individual, and therefore open to question. Formerly the state tax commission published its reports the details of state finances. Later the Blue Book gave the facts for a time, but neither the last report of the tax commission, nor the last Blue Book, gives the sort of information that is necessary either to ascertain the facts or to make comparisons with former years.

Adams Makes Admissions. It is necessary in order to make such comparisons as I have been making in these letters, as to state taxes and state expenditures, to use the report of the tax commission for 1907 for the facts prior to that year, then the Blue Book for the years succeeding, and up to 1911; for 1911 and 1912 the report of the state tax commission, and for 1913-14 the published newspaper statements of the treasurer. I for one therefore appreciate Prof. Adams' effort, even though it is not official and authoritative, as it should be.

The people of Wisconsin are entitled to better and fuller information than they get for the large amount of money they spend on their tax commission. Prof. Adams has also done me another favor by admitting all that is necessary to prove what have charged as to the growing cost of government. He says:

"IT IS TAX PAYING TIME IN WISCONSIN AND EVERYBODY IS KEENLY AWARE THAT TAXES HAVE GONE UP. THERE IS A ROOM FOR ARGUMENT ABOUT THE FACT THAT THEY HAVE RISEN. LOCAL TAXES ARE HIGHER, COUNTY TAXES ARE HIGHER, STATE TAXES ARE HIGHER."

The importance of this statement from a member of the state tax commission is so great that I will leave it to soak in. Your readers have not heard or seen anything like that before from official sources.

There is no escaping the facts or they would not have such an admission now.

A Sermo for Wisconsin. This revelation of Prof. Adams came to me just as I was making an opinion regarding knowledge from the late Prof. William G. Sumner of Yale, in a valuable volume of his entitled "Earth, Hunger and Other Essays" recently published. It fits in here most admirably.

Prof. Sumner says that knowledge "is power and nothing more." "The man who has it is equipped for action both with tools and weapons. What will he do with it? It is simply a cruel and empty superstition to believe that knowledge of reading, writing, arithmetic and geography make good husbands and fathers and citizens. It does not."

In truth, half-culture is the great curse of our time. Half-culture makes a man volatile and opinionated. It makes them the easy victims of fads and fallacies and makes them stubborn in adhering to whims which they have taken up. It makes them impatient of reason and argument because they hold to their pet ideas with a pertinacity which has a great deal of vanity in it. It makes them quick to talk and slow to think or study."

There is a whole sermon for our state in this quotation and it is worthy of careful study. Prof. Sumner was acknowledged to be one of the clearest thinkers and best teachers of America.

Non-Partisan Elections. Milwaukee has a prospect of an interesting exemplification of the value of non-partisan elections in a large city. There are five candidates for mayor already in the field, the present mayor, Dr. Bading, David S. Rose, Theodore Olsen, a semi-announced candidate named Piensel, of whom I never before heard, and the Social Democratic candidate, ex-Mayor Seidel, who despite the law is really a party candidate as everybody knows.

The prospect is disturbing to the non-partisan champions, and although I am a bystander I am told by a number of people who are not likely to vote for him that they would put their money on Rose if they were forced to lay a wager. Personally I see no need of any more complete and perfect elimination of parties than we have in this state, taking it generally. A McGovern man, for instance, is supposed, if you scratch him deep enough to turn out a Bull Moose, a Morris man is supposed to wear "Bob's" collar. And the Democratic measure of principles seems to be in the keeping of "Joe and I" just where or what great questions of national and international importance adjust to either of these champions of personal politics does not appear clearly, except to the enthusiasts who are "in it for the ride."

I suppose they understand it because somebody must or nobody would vote with either hand. We have 210 candidates already in the field in this city with the lists still open, and the state seems to offer equal possibilities for candidates and confusion.

Mort Other Personalities. The other day there dropped into Milwaukee a special commissioner of the Erie whose title does not appear in the schedule of officials, but who is, as most Wisconsin people can guess, pretty close to the president.

The visitor was Capt. George I. Schoeffel, who, years back, was the captain of the Milwaukee Light Horse Squadron and a well known business man of this city. He travels the country over now in the interests of the Erie, and I am told reports directly to the president. He is hunting for opportunities to increase the efficiency of the Erie's service and extend its grasp upon the business west of Chicago as well as east of it.

Wisconsin his friends know that he can "size up" the field with the eye of a master. The Erie has its scouts abroad in the land and they are all busy.

"Easy Money" Scarce. William Paulus, the keeper at the Milwaukee police station, has advanced a new theory, based upon his statistics, to indicate that times are hard in this locality. He says that when there is plenty of "easy money" the number of arrests for the smaller misdemeanors is large, and when arrests fall off it is an indication that money is not circulating freely. Arrests for the first three weeks in January were 477, as compared with 680 in January 1911, and 629 in 1912. The number of men out of employment is known to be very much larger than usual, and the mild weather so far has been a great boon.

Short Notes. It is interesting to know that the Canadian government, which has been investigating the high cost of living, finds a large increase in prices of food since 1900. As examples, sirloin steak has doubled, going from 12½ to 25 cents. Fresh eggs have gone from 22 to 50 cents, and butter from 22 to 30 cents.

Dr. McCarthy, who has, it is understood, consulted about the democratic platform, now objects to President Wilson's anti-trust plans, because he favors Gov. McGovern's projects for co-operative trusts between the farmers. It is hard for the doctor to cover all the eggs he sets.

THIRTY COUPLES ENJOY PRETTY DANCING PARTY. Last evening thirty couples assembled at East Side L. O. O. F. dance hall and enjoyed a few hours dancing the tango and hesitation at a social dancing party. The novel feature of the party was the fact that the music was furnished by a boys' orchestra, recently organized in this city, and known as the "Burdies" orchestra.

They played fine music, all popular, and kept good time throughout the occasion. The dancing was in order from eight until twelve. At ten o'clock the report, on the Janesville-Stoughton high school basketball contest, played at Stoughton, was announced. When the score became known the crowd went wild with enthusiasm, for a majority really expected a defeat for the locals. All reported a good time. The committee in charge were: Leonard Tuckwood, Frank Lee and Karl Frick.

Died While Making Coffin. Under curious circumstances a man named Ryan died at Dublin a few days ago. While making a coffin he suddenly expired and was found lying under a long board which was intended to be the coffin lid.

Saw the End. "What is the final end of man?" queried the Sunday school teacher. "The letter N," answered the small boy at the foot of the class.

WATERY BLISTERS ON CHILD'S FACE

Kept Scratching Until Cheeks Fiery Red, Skin Cracked and Scaly, Itched and Burned. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. No Return of Trouble.

Smithville, Ind.—"Six months ago our baby girl, one year old, had a few red pimples come on her face which gradually spread causing her face to become very itched and a fiery red color. The pimples on the child's face were at first small watery blisters just a small blotch on the skin. She kept scratching at this until in a few days her whole cheeks were fiery red color and instead of the little blisters the skin was cracked and scaly looking and seemed to itch and burn very much."

"We used a number of remedies which seemed to give relief for a short time then leave her face worse than ever. Finally we got a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I washed the child's face with very warm water and Cuticura Soap, then applied the Cuticura Ointment very lightly. After doing this about three times a day the itching and burning seemed entirely gone in two days' time. Inside of two weeks' time her face seemed well. That was eight months ago and there has been no return of the trouble." (Signed) Mrs. A. K. Woodson, Nov. 4, 1912.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment do so much for poor complexioned, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, and cost so little, that it is almost criminal not to use them. Sold by dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book on the skin and scalp. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

WOMEN'S WOES

Janesville Women Are Finding Relief at Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up" must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Keeping the kidneys well has spared thousands of women much misery. Read of a remedy for kidney ills only that is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. George Hammes, 1208 Ravine St., Janesville, Wis., says: "Just about a year ago I began to notice that my kidneys were getting in bad shape. The first symptoms were severe backaches and pains across my hips. Then I had headaches and dizzy spells. I was nervous and felt miserable. I knew that my kidneys were causing this trouble so I used Doan's Kidney Pills. It took only a few boxes to cure me. Doan's Kidney Pills put my kidneys in fine shape and the nervous and dizzy spells left me, together with the pains in my back and head."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Broadway Jones

From the Play of
George M. Cohan

STANDARD THEATRE

Oh, come on. The judge now took a firmer hold on him. "It will make them all feel good."

His faithful wife went to his aid. She took the other arm of the acutely miserable youth, and between them they propelled him from the room, through the short length of a wide hallway stacked on either side with boxes full of chewing gum already packed for shipment, through a breathlessly hot engine-room, and into the main room upon the factory's ground floor.

Their appearance was the signal for an uproar of applause. The loudest cheering of the previous outburst was surpassed so notably that, by comparison, it had been whispering. In the enthusiasm of the moment men, women and the younger workers of the force lost all sense of reserve.

Broadway ceased to be that terrible thing, a new and untold boss, who must be looked at carefully, addressed with caution and regarded with respect, made up principally of fear. He was young; he had been fair to them; he was their economic savior.

They went mad, and, at first permitting him no opportunity to make the speech which he so feared, seized him as if he had been the winning player at a football game and bore him round the great room of the factory upon their shoulders.

There was affection in the strong arms of the men who lifted him; there were tears in many women's eyes which watched. Not only was this youth the boss; he was the young boss. They knew he had been plucky in his loyalty to them, rumors of the splendid offer which the trust had made had been circulated freely. He was accredited with that intention most admired by real Americans, and these workmen, in this old New England mill, in this old New England village, were principally native sons.

He was not content to be an idler; he insisted upon buckling down to a man's job. And had he not decided to take up the burden of gum-manufacture largely through his feeling of responsibility to them and to the town? Financially the offer of the trust must certainly have been more tempting than the prospect of commercial battle which, even should it win, would inevitably involve a long, expensive and intensely wearing strain!

Would they ride him round and round upon their shoulders? Would they cheer him till the blood rushed to their heads? Would the woman want to kiss him and the youngsters look at him as if he were a species of superior being? Verily, they would. And verily they did.

In the meantime, in the office, Clara was left quite alone. She may have been aware that interesting things were happening in the factory, things which she would very gladly have witnessed, but beyond doubt she felt that something far more interesting to wit, the arrival of Bob Wallace—was likely to occur at any moment in the office. She preferred the smiles of Wallace to the cheers of working-people, and she waited for them.

Wallace was not long delayed. She greeted him with cordial liking. "You didn't expect to find me here, did you?"

"Well, hardly. This is an unexpected pleasure."

"Mr. Jones will be back in a few minutes. He went out in the works to make a speech."

She gave this information with the air of one explaining commonplace. To her everything, in deed, was commonplace, save Wallace. She held him the most extraordinary thing on earth.

But he was utterly amazed. "To make a speech!" He burst into a roar of laughter. "Well, what do you think of that?"

She smiled at him. She cared nothing for the cheering, but she would talk to him about it because she liked to talk to him on any subject. "Well, you should have heard them cheering! They've made more noise than this old town has ever heard before."

"Yes, I dare say it is," he granted, as new cheers burst forth.

But he did not go to see the demonstration, which indicated to him that he must find something most attractive in this village belle's company. What other woman could have held him from the sight of Broadway Jones in his first effort as an orator?

"Funny," he remarked, and smiled at her; "I was thinking of you as I passed the drug store just now."

She laughed, delighted. "That's strange. I've been thinking of you, too!"

"Have you really?"

"Yes. Oh, those chocolates were fine! I ate them all before I went to bed."

Then, reproachfully, "but you shouldn't be spending your money the way you do!"

He was unconscious of any mad expenditure of which she could be cognizant and, therefore, was surprised.

"What?"

"Mr. Jones told me that you were a regular spendthrift."

This from Broadway, the most famous spendthrift of New York's recent years! "When did he tell you that?" he asked, endeavoring to hide the meaning of his smiles.

"Just a little while ago. He said you spent over twenty-five dollars one night!"

For a second this extraordinary statement almost choked him. He had been with Broadway when that sum would have been regarded as a modest tip for a head-waiter.

"Oh, did he tell you about that night?" he asked, still carefully endeavoring to conceal the nature of his smiles at last.

And as he smiled it came upon him that for reasons which he did not understand as yet he should be sorry to have this particular girl learn details of some nights which he and Broadway Jones had passed together on the famous street they knew so well.

"Yes," she said, prettily admonishing, "and you mustn't waste it in that way any more."

She shook her finger at him playfully, but with a serious light of eyes behind the playfulness which seemed to indicate proprietary interest in him. It amused him—but he found it unmistakably pleasant, too.

The excited Sam came in. Sam always seemed to come at just those moments which without him would have been more interesting.

"He's—shaking—hands—with—everybody," he volunteered.

"Who? Mr. Jones?" asked Clara.

"Yes—Gosh!—He—was—saved—to—make—a—speech!—I—bet—I—wouldn't—be—afraid!—If—ever—I—amount—to—anything—the—first—thing—I'm—going—to—do—is—to—make—a—speech—about—myself!"

Wallace laughed. "You've got the right idea, Sammy."

"You—bet—I've—got—the—right—idea!—I've—got—darned—good—ideas—if—I—ever—get—a—chance—to—use—'em!"

Clara was reproving. "Sammy, stop this constant talking about yourself!"

"Stop—your—own—talking!—You—don't—understand—me. I've—got—brains—I—have!"

"No one can tell," said Wallace. "Maybe he has."

"I'll—surprise—you—all—some—day!"

Clara smiled at Wallace. "Ain't it funny. He really thinks he's going to be a big man."

"Well, maybe he will," said Wallace, considering Sammy's bulk reflectively, and then, again, he's liable to fall away to almost nothing."

She laughed, delighted at his humor. "Oh, I see what you mean! You're always joking, aren't you?"

"Aren't I the cut-up, though?" he gently grieved her.

It was very silly, and he knew how very silly it was, but, none the less, the city man enjoyed the perusal of this red-cheeked rural maiden, in the extraordinary ebullition of his spirits he reached out his hand for hers, found it, and stood swinging it. She blushed, he laughed. He was really burling a flirtation, but she did not know it, nor was the impulse of his foolery entirely burlesque. He was very much confused when an amused cough from behind them told that Josie had come in.

He whirled. "Oh, good morning, Miss Richards!"

"How do you do, Mr. Wallace?" She smiled with definite satisfaction. "Mr. Jones is causing quite a sensation in the works."

"So I understand."

"Shall I tell him you are here?" asked Clara.

"I wish you would, if it isn't too much trouble, Miss Spotswood."

"Not at all. I'll be only too pleased." She smiled at him. "Nobody ever calls me anything but Clara."

Wallace felt that he was most emphatically in clover. "Oh, you Clara!" He was a large young man, with a large, smooth-shaven face, particularly broad. It was one happy smile.

She was giggling as she hurried toward the factory. "I'll tell him, right away."

Wallace turned to Josie. "Has Mr. Pembroke called?"

"No; Mr. Jones was saying he expected him at eleven o'clock."

"Well, it isn't quite eleven, yet."

"He told me of the advice you gave him. We have a good deal to thank you for. I'm sure of that."

"I don't see why," he protested. "He's only doing what is right. Any man with a conscience would do the same. Of course my influence may have had some bearing on his decision, but, believe me, his mind was made up when you got through with him last night."

She was very earnest. "Oh, it means so much to so many!"

"Any way, I think he'd be a fool to sell."

"You do?"

"Certainly. A proposition which showed the profit this did last year—without any advertising! Why, it's wonderful! I know what I'm talking about. I'm with the biggest advertising firm in New York city."

"But we couldn't afford to advertise, except in a small way," she said in explanation of what he evidently thought their lack of enterprise, "and the big firms wouldn't take a petty contract."

"Why didn't you, try the Empire Agency?"

She shook her head. "We did. They refused to handle us at all. They do most of the Consolidated's work, you see. I guess that was the reason."

He was quick to deny this. He did not wish anyone to think that the great Empire Agency would favor one concern to the extent of shutting out another in fair competition.

"Oh, no," he confidently asserted, "we don't make that sort of agreements. No corporation can dictate to us. The Empire's my firm. My Governor's its president."

"Oh, well, then, perhaps, you know all about it." She evidently did not care to be so firmly contradicted.

This daunted him. "You say they refused to handle your work?"

"Absolutely."

For a moment he stood lost in thought, then suddenly reached a resolution of importance. "May I use your phone?" he asked.

"Certainly."

"Give me long distance," he demanded of the operator; then, while he was waiting, he turned back to Josie, saying almost angrily: "That's a pretty rotten trick, it's so—to squeeze the little fellow out like that. You're absolutely sure it was the Empire?"

"Yes; we tried all the big advertising firms."

"There isn't any other big advertising firm," he valiantly declaimed. His business patriotism was unquestionable. "If there was we'd whip it over to the Empire in pretty quick shape."

The receiver, which he held at his ear, showed signs of life. "Hello, I want New York," he told the operator. Then, to Josie: "What's this number?"

"Two-two Main."

"This is two-two Main, the Jones plant," he informed the operator. "All right. Get them for me as quickly as you can."

This is Guaranteed to Stop Your Cough

Make this Family Supply of Cough Syrup at Once and Save $2.

This plan makes a pint of better cough syrup than you could buy ready made for $2.50. A few doses usually conquer an ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Simple as it is, no better remedy can be had at any price.

Mix one pint of granulated sugar with 1/2 pint of warm water, and stir for 2 minutes. Put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex (fifty cents worth) in a pint bottle; then add the Sugar Syrup. It has a pleasant taste and lasts a family a long time. Take a teaspoonful every one, two or three hours.

You can feel this take hold of a cough in a way that means business. Has a good tonic effect, braces up the appetite, and is slightly laxative, too, which is helpful. A handy remedy for hoarseness, spasmodic croup, bronchitis, bronchial asthma and whooping cough.

The effect of Pinex on the membranes is well known. Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of Norwegian white pine extract, and is rich in gualiacol and other natural healing pine elements. Other preparations will not work in this combination.

This Pinex and Sugar Syrup remedy has often been imitated, though never successfully. It is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy.

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction, or money promptly refunded, goes with this preparation. Your druggist has Pinex, or will get it for you. If not, send to The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

wears a bit of ribbon as a badge of his principles. Rising before the school, he pointed to his ribbon and said: "Now can any of you children give me a reason why I am not a drunkard?" There was no reply for a moment; then a childish little voice in the rear of the room piped out: "Cause this a prohibition town."

There was a little boy who began to keep a dairy. His first entry was: "Got up this morning at 7 o'clock."

He showed the entry to his mother, and she, horror-stricken, said: "Have you been to school? Got up, indeed! Such an expression!"

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Jan. 31, 1874.—A decision in Favor of the Harris Company.

The case of Rowell vs. Harris Manufacturing Company, of this city was decided yesterday by a verdict from the jury in favor of the defendant. Rowell sued the Harris Company in the United States Circuit Court at Milwaukee. Judge Howe presiding, for the sum of $50,000 damages for an alleged infringement of a patent belonging to the plaintiff in the construction of the Prairie City seeder by the defendant. Winkler of Madison and Orton of Milwaukee were attorneys for the plaintiff and Carpenter and Cassidy of Janesville were representing the defendants.

A special plea for the Bower City and may not be inopportune at this time. They are to give a series of dances and musical entertainments. The band is struggling hard to maintain itself and attain the highest degree of excellence in the department of music.

About forty couples went to Milton Junction last night, where they were royally treated by Proprietor Foster of the Junction House. The music furnished by Lunden's band was most excellent for dancing.

J. W. Storey has just sold the Ogden house for $12,000 to the Storey Allen Company of Chicago. This includes the hotel and the land on which it stands
